Allende Forces Crush Rebellion

SANTIAGO (AP) — President Salvador Allende announced today that military forces loyal to his leftist government had crushed a rebellion by an army unit that had attacked his palace with machine guns.

The rebels, members of an army armored regiment, drew up to the palace during the morning rush hour with tanks. They fired at the palace guard but the guns on the tanks remained silent. Loyalist forces routed the rebels after a few hours of fighting that left a number of dead and wounded.

Allende was not at the palace when the attack began but went there under heavy guard after loyalist forces regained complete control of the palace area.

Allende, a Marxist who seeks to make Chile a Socialist state, then announced in a nationwide radio broadcast that "the majority" of the rebel troops had surrendered. Earlier, the government imposed a state of emergency throughout the country.

Several deaths were reported. Dozens were wounded by automatic-weapon and machine-gun fire as rebel tanks and troops stormed the palace.

Allende arrived at the palace from his suburban home under the escort of bodyguards about three hours after the rebel assault began.

The rebel tanks had already retreated from positions around the palace and there was little gunfire except for loyal troops firing shots in the air to disperse huge crowds of bystanders who wandered through the traffic-deserted downtown streets.

Shortly after the attack began, Allende spoke over a nationwide radio hookup from his home in a residential section and said the attack was carried out by a small unit of the 23,000-man army. He said all other military units remained loyal to him.

He called on the nation to remain calm. Allende said in his broadcast a "seditious sector" of the army was involved. Chilean armed forces have traditionally remained out of Chilean political affairs. The carabinieri have been the nation's most influential armed element.

Allende said he had ordered loyal troops to converge on the palace. As they moved in, firefights spread to the streets around the palace.

The state of emergency meant the armed forces had assumed control of public order and that some individual rights, such as the holding of public gatherings, were suspended.

The president spoke on the radio from his home in a residential section of the city.

Personal Consumption Cutback Of Energy Proposed by Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon called today for a five per cent cutback in personal consumption of energy and asked the states to lower highway speed limits to reduce gasoline use.

In a statement, Nixon said the federal government would set an example by cutting energy use seven per cent through such measures as raising thermostats on air conditioners and buying autos that provide increased gas mileage.

The President also proposed a $10-billion energy research program to be carried out over a five-year period. He recommended a major government reorganization to transform the present Interior Department into a new Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

Nixon also asked Congress to create an Energy Research and Development Administration and, on his own, set up a new White House Energy Policy Office headed by Colorado Gov. John A. Love, who is being appointed a presidential assistant.

Nixon said that "unless we act swiftly and effectively, we could face a genuine energy crisis in the foreseeable future."

In a letter to the governors of the 50 states, Nixon wrote, "I urge you to work with your legislature on reducing highway

Ingersoll Leaves Drug Agency Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — John E. Ingersoll quit today as chief of the government's largest drug enforcement agency and accused the White House of frequent and disruptive interference with his operations.

Ingersoll told newsmen on his last day as director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs that resigned presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were responsible for easing him out of the job and also for continual interference.

A career law enforcement officer who is joining a private firm next week, Ingersoll said he was upset when he was told that he ought to find another job. He indicated that he would have been interested in the job of head of the new Drug Enforcement Administration if he had been assured of independence from the White House.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous

Drugs and other federal drug enforcement units merge at midnight Saturday into the single agency under Justice Department supervision.

But the new Drug Enforcement Administration has no leader and officials of the affected agencies say work at the highest levels is floundering in confusion.

Ingersoll said he knows the job has been offered to a few people but he knows of no one who has agreed to take it.

He said the White House made no attempt to influence investigations or personnel appointments. But he said he believes that was because he made it clear he would resist all such pressure.

Asked to elaborate on what sort of intervention took place, Ingersoll replied, "it's hard to describe. It was the kind of thing you had to live with every day."

First Factual Discrepancy Noted In Dean's Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III conceded today he may have named the wrong hotel as the site of a key Watergate cover-up meeting.

It was the first factual discrepancy to turn up in five days of testimony before the Senate Watergate committee by the ousted White House counsel, who has said President Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up.

As the committee neared the end of Dean's cross-examination and a 10-day holiday break, Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., directed that the White House be asked to give Dean permission to photocopy his voluminous government and personal records still at the White House.

Dean, noting he has been asked to provide much data from those records, said "I would hope the committee would put the White House on notice or they may not be there when I get there."

Another set of records, provided to Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., by two Washington hotels, led to Dean's acknowledgment that he may have been wrong in naming the site of a meeting June 29, 1972 with Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal attorney.

But Dean told the committee he clearly recalled the substance of the meeting despite confusion over the site. He has testified the meeting concerned raising hush money for persons arrested at the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972.

Dean said he had met Kalmbach at the hotel coffee shop and then in a room at the Mayflower Hotel. Gurney produced records showing Kalmbach was registered at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, about three blocks away.

Dean, first saying perhaps Kalmbach registered under a false name, then said he had always confused the two hotels despite 10 years' residence in the Washington area. Gurney said this cast doubt on other Dean testimony. After a brief pause and a whisper from his attorney, Dean said the coffee shop in the Statler-Hilton is named the Mayflower. The audience in the packed hearing room broke into applause and cheers.

In a morning session punctuated by folksy stories told by Ervin and Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., Dean was led again through some of his accounts of meetings with Nixon.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked Dean about White House actions taken against its political enemies, especially members of Congress.

Dean said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., had been under surveillance for a time by White House-directed agents. He said he knew of no buggings or break-ins employed against Kennedy.

Dean insisted that he took any role in planning of such operations only under extreme pressure. In this area, too, he often repeated testimony he had given earlier in the week.

Dean said also that he knew of no legal work done at the White House exploring whether Congress has a right to subpoena the President.

Shortly before Dean began his fifth day of testimony, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the committee vice chairman, appealed to President Nixon to give a sworn account of his meetings with his accuser, Dean, but said he believes the Constitution bars the committee from compelling the President to testify.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., the first questioner of Dean today, asked about legal work performed by White House lawyers on separation of powers and executive privilege.

Dean said neither he nor anyone else he knew of had worked on such matters in relation to any subpoena of Nixon. Montoya did not directly suggest that Nixon be subpoenaed.

The committee heard Thursday that the President suggested through an aide last March that his attorney general publicly attack a charge by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., that top White House aides knew of or condoned political espionage.

The Senate panel obtained a transcript of the conversation between then-presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman and then-Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst from federal prosecutors who subpoenaed the tape recording from Ehrlichman's files.

Both men have resigned since the conversation took place on March 28.

The transcript indicates Ehrlichman called Kleindienst to discuss news reports of a statement by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., a member of the Watergate committee.

Ehrlichman said the President had told him to call acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III to have Gray check with Weicker to find out what the charges were about.

"He was quite vague with Pat as to what he (Weicker) had, and Kleindienst said he also had spoken to senator," Ehrlichman said.

Ehrlichman continued: "...the President's feeling is that it wouldn't be too bad for you in your press conferences in the next couple of days to take a swing at that...and it turns out he doesn't have anything."

Kleindienst replied he would "question the advisability of provoking...a confrontation with Weicker" because "in the long run we might need that guy's vote."

The attorney general referred to Weicker as "kind of an excitable kid" and suggested he shouldn't be alienated.

Ford Reports Nixon Promise On U.S. Indochina Activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said today President Nixon has promised to either halt all U.S. military activities in Indochina by Aug. 15 or come back for specific approval by Congress of further activities.

Ford told the House of the President's personal commitment after a telephone conversation with Nixon as the House neared the first of a day of votes by Congress on cutting off funds for the bombing in Cambodia.

Ford said the President promised that "if military action is required in Southeast Asia after Aug. 15 the President will ask congressional authority of the House and Senate and will abide by Congress' decision."

Ford said Nixon promised he would accept and sign a bill by Congress cutting off funds for the bombing by Aug. 15 but said he would veto any bill cutting the money off sooner.

Negotiations had been underway to avoid a direct clash between Congress and the President.

The negotiations slowed Senate consideration of one of the three measures containing a fund cutoff, the continuing resolution to fund federal agencies after midnight Saturday.

The House, meanwhile, took up the once-vetoed $3.4-billion supplemental appropriations bill, designed to meet the government's obligations before midnight Saturday.

The compromise efforts, aimed generally at delaying the fund cutoff until Aug. 15 in return for a firm pledge from the Nixon administration to end the bombing then, were being complicated by a split among the Senate's war critics.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said they were opposed to any compromise that would, in effect, give the administration authority to bomb Cambodia until mid-August.

Other war critics, including Sens. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, were said to be agreeable to the Aug. 15 date—but only if it applies to all of Indochina, the two Vietnams as well as Laos and Cambodia.

The White House reportedly was willing to accept Aug. 15—but only for Laos and Cambodia—leaving its hands free for any possible future U.S. military action in North and South Vietnam.

Still awaiting final action from both houses is the bill extending the federal debt ceiling and raising Social Security benefits. Parliamentary problems threatened to delay House action until Saturday.

In Social Security Payments

Congress Expected To Approve Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was expected to approve today a 5.6 per cent increase in Social Security payments, contained in a conglomerate bill threatened by presidential veto because of a rider against the Cambodian bombing.

The House and Senate scheduled votes on the bill that includes among its provisions the Social Security benefit increase, a cutoff of funds for the bombing and an extension of the federal debt limit, without which the Treasury would soon run out of funds. The Social Security increase for nearly 30 million persons, would be effective next April 1.

The entire measure, a compromise worked out by a Senate-House conference, was to be presented first to the House as a single package.

President Nixon was reported to have sent word he would veto the bill if it cut off funds for Cambodian operations.

The Social Security increase would raise the average payment for a retired individual from the present $161 to $170 a month, and for a couple from $277 to $293. It was tied to a financing plan that would mean higher taxes for some. It would not increase payroll deductions.

The basic bill, developed into the catch-all, would extend the present $465-billion national debt ceiling for five months. Without some such legislation, the ceiling will drop at midnight Saturday to $400 billion, well below the actual national debt, and the Treasury within a few days would be unable to meet government obligations.

In congressional action Thursday:

—The Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee approved a bill that would open the way for members of Congress to get more frequent pay raises without having to vote for them.

Under the bill, a commission would be appointed every two years, instead of every four as provided by present law, to recommend adjustments in the pay of the government's top officials.

—The Senate passed, 88 to 6, and sent to conference with the House a $10.2-billion Agriculture and Environmental Appropriations Bill, which is $670 million over President Nixon's budget. The House voted $120 million less than the President recommended.

—The House passed and sent to the Senate a $4.67-billion appropriations bill for public works, water and power projects and the Atomic Energy Commission.

On Fairgrounds Facility Repair

Jefferson City Firm Low Bidder

A low bid of $95,969 was submitted Thursday on a state-financed project to repair facilities at the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

Apparent low bids were submitted on 11 state projects, seven of them for Missouri National Guard facilities, the Division of Design and Construction in Jefferson City announced.

The division said that Missouri Builders Service, Jefferson City, was the low bidder for the Fairgrounds project.

A spokesman for the company said Friday the bid contract calls for removing shingle roofs and replacing them with asphalt ones at the Coliseum, 4-H, Varied Industries, Home Economics and Light Horse Barn buildings.

Ron Jones, State Fair secretary, was not available for comment Friday.

In other announcements, the division said B. C. D. Co. Inc. of Jefferson City was low on repairs to the Guard's vehicle storage building at St. Clair with a bid of $700.

For installation of a diesel exhaust system in a Guard building at Fort Crowder, Smith Construction Co. of Joplin bid $4,037.

The only bidder on repairs and replacements at guard facilities in Marshall was Temple Builders, Inc., of Marshall, at $11,249.

At $7,543, Gieske Sheet Metal Co. of Kansas City was the low bidder on installation of a diesel exhaust system for the guard building at Raytown.

For repairs and replacements to guard facilities in Jefferson City, Trice Construction Co., of Jefferson City, was low at $31,000, and for installation of aluminum siding at the carpenter shop and lumber shed of the state arsenal shop, Roark Aluminum Window and Insulation Co., of Jefferson City bid $7,925.

Missouri Roofing Co. of St. Louis, at $27,907, was low for structural roof repairs and re-roofing at the guard's organizational maintenance shop in St. Louis County.

E. G. Linhardt Construction Co. of Jefferson City was low at $209,100 for major additions, repairs and replacements to existing facilities at the Training School for Boys in Boonville.

Wright Air Conditioning of Kansas City, was low on repairs and replacements to existing facilities and power plant repairs at Nevada State Hospital, at $300,000.

Movement Abandons Old Vocabulary

NEU-MORESNET, Belgium (AP) — An American movement that believes it can spread Christianity without mentioning God, Jesus Christ or any of the old religious vocabulary recently made its debut on the European continent.

The Rev. Frederic Buss was in charge. A 38-year-old Methodist pastor who once worked with the late Martin Luther King Jr.

He organized a two-day "laboratory course" called "living effectively in the new society (LENS)." The scene was a summer resort in the gently rolling green hills along Belgium's border with West Germany, not far from Aachen.

There was no talk of sin or baptism or conversion or salvation, but of "human resurgence."

"I believe we're delivering the thrust of the Christian message," said Buss.

"We don't use the traditional words and symbols in this course because a conversation in depth on the essence of being human, human in the full, sensitive and aware, is something every man wants to join."

He explained that he wants to reach people who dislike the old symbols, or do not understand them.

He works closely with his wife, Sarah, a professional psychologist. Both belong to the Ecumenical Institute in Chicago, which sponsored the course.

Their children, Elizabeth, 8, and Lindsey, 6, are being cared for by institute members while the parents are in Europe. The other two teachers were also a Chicago couple, David P. Wood Jr. and his wife, Anne. They are volunteers — he is a member of a big Chicago law firm, McDermott, Will and Emery.

Buss points out that other courses given by the institute do deal with traditional religious material.

The institute has developed the "LENS" course in the United States over the past three years and is now spreading it to other countries as well. Starts have been made in the Philippines, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Britain. This weekend it was held not only in Belgium but in Bombay.

In Neu-Moresnet there were 27 participants of four nationalities, most of them Americans. It was something like a long revival meeting or a short religious retreat. Work began at 7 a.m. and lasted until well after midnight.

Sessions were sprinkled with songs and readings. The song, led by Wood's powerful baritone, were not quite hymns. They had titles like "A Light Is Now Breaking" and "Free Am I," with words about joy, affirmation, life and death, set to tunes like "Summer Time" and the Washington Post March. The readings were mostly from a book of Japanese legends.

Impending Death Is Not Cause for Her to Worry

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Her doctors and an ancient Biblical omen both had a jolting word for Dr. Josephine M. Ford, a noted Scripture scholar: She likely would die soon. But it doesn't distress her.

"I look forward to it," she says. "I believe so strongly in an afterlife that death has no dread for me. I look forward to meeting the Lord."

Curiously, the medical conclusion that she would live only about another four years came as she neared completion of a massive commentary on the Book of Revelation, which also hints at dire consequences for such work.

"It's a joke among my friends," Dr. Ford said in an interview. "It would be superstition to think that the curse really was operative. I see it with a sense of humor, a coincidence."

Nevertheless, she cited cases of four other Biblical scholars in this country and Great Britain who have met early deaths from heart attacks, accidents or abrupt infirmities after doing studies of the mystical last book of the Bible.

It warns, in Rev. 22:18, that if anyone adds to the "words of the prophecy of this book, God will add to him the plagues described in this book."

Dr. Ford, a New Testament professor at the University of Notre Dame, declined to specify her age, saying ladies don't do that. But she looks young, perhaps in her late 30s. She has worked five years on the 1,100-page commentary, to be published by Doubleday late this year.

It's part of a comprehensive Anchor series of commentaries on the entire Bible.

"I've learned a lot about how it feels to be approaching death," she said. She said her doctors a year ago diagnosed her as suffering from a terminal case of lupus erythematosus, a progressive deterioration of tissue and organs.

"I was a little perplexed at my own reactions," she said. "I enjoy this life immensely."

Installation Of New Pastor At St. Paul's

The Rev. Erhard W.W. Wolf will be installed as pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church at a special service at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The preacher at the service will be the Rev. Walter Niedner, third vice president of the Missouri District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

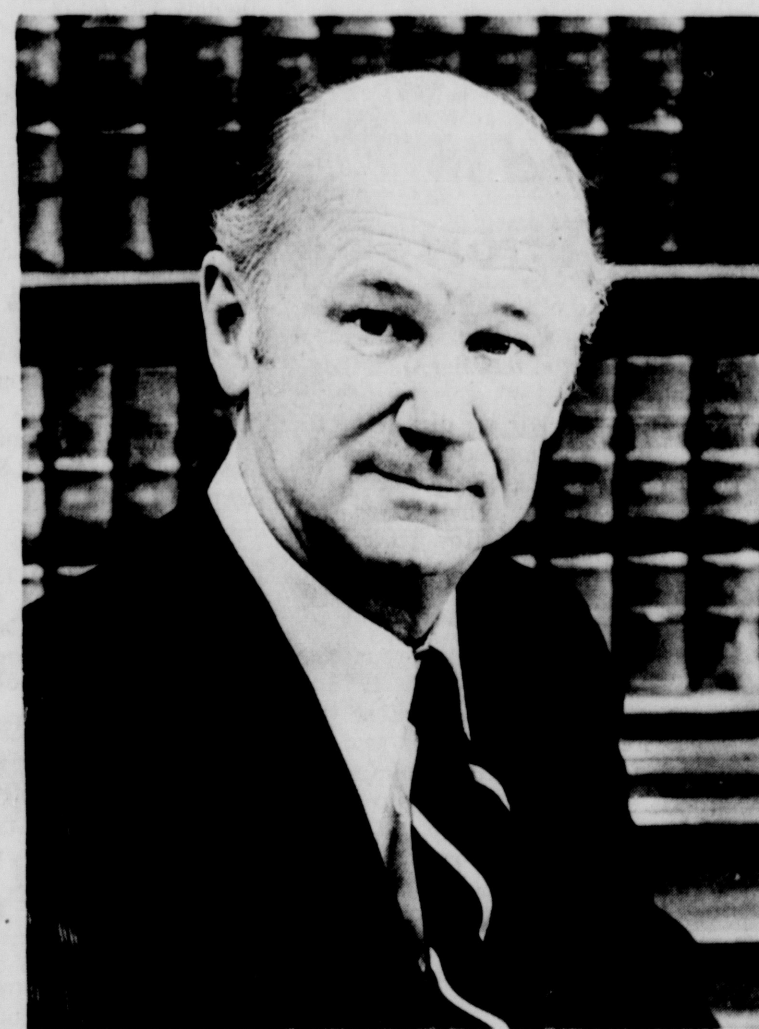

The Rev. William Schultz will be the officiant. The Rev. Roger Sonnenberg, pastor of Our Savior Lutheran Church here, will be the liturgist.

Mr. Wolf has served in the teaching ministry at Lutheran schools at Lincoln, Tex., and Mt. Pulaski, Ill. For the past eight years he has been the pastor of Lutheran churches in Uniontown and Longtown, Mo.

He has served as chairman of the floor committee on education at the Missouri District Convention in 1970. He also helped to realign the district's circuits and served as circuit counselor from 1966 to 1973.

Name Sedalia Man to Board Of Trustees

Marvin E. Welch, 500 West Broadway, has been named to the board of trustees of Presbyterian Homes of Missouri. It was announced at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synods of Mid-America in Lawrence, Kan., recently.

The trustees operate Presbyterian Homelife retirement centers in Farmington and Fulton. A third, and similar, project is now underway at Rolla.

Welch and his wife, Alta Mae, returned to Sedalia in 1967 after his retirement from Bethlehem Steel Corp., Tulsa, where he served as a buyer. They had lived in Tulsa for 43 years.

Welch is a member of the Noonday Optimist Club, the Masonic Lodge, American Legion Post 1 in Tulsa and other civic organizations. He is a ruling elder in Broadway Presbyterian Church.

Priest Is Given New Assignment

The Rev. Charles Pfeiffer, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, 415 East Fourth, has been reassigned as pastor of St. Mary's Church in Glasgow, Mo., according to an announcement Friday by Bishop Michael F. McAuliffe of the Jefferson City diocese.

Fr. Pfeiffer, who has been pastor of St. Patrick's since 1965, said he will assume his new duties Aug. 1. A spokesman for the diocese in Jefferson City said no replacement has been named at this time.

Fr. Pfeiffer served as associate pastor at Glasgow from 1954 to 1958, and taught at St. Thomas Seminary at Hannibal from 1958 to 1961. He served as pastor of St. Theresa parish in Dixon from 1961 until coming to Sedalia.

Fr. Pfeiffer was ordained in 1954 in St. Louis. He completed his theological studies at Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis.

Seven other priests were appointed to new positions within the diocese. The appointments were made by Bishop McAuliffe after consulting with the diocesan personnel board, according to the announcement.

Local Church Plans Trip To South America

About 35 members of Maplewood Church are scheduled to fly to Guadeloupe Island in South America Sunday on a missionary trip.

The group will be helping to construct a church building for the Rev. Jerry Voss and his family. Mr. Voss spoke to Maplewood Church members last January about his planned missionary work on the island.

Part of the group is driving to Florida from where they will fly to the island via a chartered flight. The rest are scheduled to depart Saturday from Kansas City in a private plane owned by a friend of Dr. B.L. Boatright, who also will be among the participants.

The trip is the first such foreign trip planned by Maplewood Church. The Rev. James Kane, pastor of the church, is one of the sponsors of the project.

The group, which includes many teenagers, is scheduled to be back in Sedalia July 8.

Striking Employees Dismissed

WEBSTER GROVES, Mo. (AP) — Eighteen striking city public works employees in this St. Louis County city were notified of their dismissals Thursday in a letter sent by city officials.

George Majoros, city manager, said the employees were fired after they failed to report to work Wednesday morning, one day after they set up pickets at the City Hall and the municipal garage. The employees, who are members of the Institutional and Public Service Workers Union local 41, began the strike for higher wages.

City attorneys were to go to court today to seek an injunction to end the picketing.

Charles Oldham, an attorney for the union, said the strike will not end until all the employees are returned to their jobs.

Majoros said, however, that city officials intend to hire replacements for the fired workers.

Church Bus Crash Injures Nine Aboard

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nine persons were injured in a Baptist Bible School bus that overturned five times on Interstate 35 near the northeast edge of Kansas City Thursday.

The highway patrol said a rear tire blew out, causing the bus to swerve off the pavement and roll over.

The victims included three adults and six children.

Soft-hearted Hahna

Zoo keeper John O'Connor holds Hahna, a 1 1/2-month-old female orangutan, which is being hand-raised in a unique experiment at Brookfield, Ill., zoo. Hand-raised orangutans frequently grow up socially and sexually maladjusted if, while young, they are exposed only to humans. So, Hahna will be with other orangutans at the zoo during the day but at night will go home with O'Connor and his wife, Judy, for nightly feedings. (UPI)

Danforth Seeks Ouster Of County Prosecutor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A prosecutor in southern Missouri is the target of an ouster suit filed Thursday with the state Supreme Court by Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth.

Marvin L. Smith, elected last fall without opposition in Texas County, is accused of soliciting and accepting payoffs and committing other acts of misconduct.

The suit asks for a fine of $10,000 against Smith, along with his ouster.

It says he "received compensation and other consideration to neglect his official duty."

Smith, whose office is at the county seat of Houston, was not available for comment.

The prosecutor is charged with 15 violations, several involving accepting money from persons who were charged with drunken driving or speeding violations.

Smith is charged with taking a check for $150 from Andy Vollmar on April 24. Vollmar had received a summons from a conservation agent for not checking a turkey, but was never prosecuted, the suit said.

He was accused of dropping a charge of petty stealing and failure to lodge careless driving charges against Caroline S. Collins, who he had previously represented in a divorce case.

Another allegation said Smith amended a charge of driving while intoxicated against Albert Rex Percy, to make it careless and imprudent driving while drinking. Percy, who Smith was said to have also represented in a divorce case, was given a $100 fine and a suspended jail sentence.

The meaning of mugwumps stems from an American Algonquian Indian word meaning "great man."

Warrensburg Voters Reject School Bond

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Patrons of the Warrensburg R-6 School District rejected an $855,000 bond proposal and a 38-cent increase in the school tax levy in a special election Thursday.

The vote was 794 against and 492 in favor of the bonds, and the levy was beaten 740 to 488. It was the first election on the proposals.

The bond money would have been used to establish libraries at the high schools, construct an agri-business building and improve athletic facilities. The 38 cents would have made the levy $4.95 per $100 valuation.

Appointed Judge

Robert Liston, president of the Pettis County Bar Association, congratulates Henry Keeler, 1215 Maple Lane, on his appointment as probate judge and ex-officio magistrate of Moniteau County at a party held in Keeler's honor Thursday at The Old Missouri Homestead. Keeler, a Sedalia attorney, spent a short time as city attorney and is a former Pettis County prosecuting attorney. Keeler will move to Moniteau County as soon as he sells his home in Sedalia.

OATS Grant Is Approved For Local Program

A $49,977 grant for the Older Adults Transportation Service (OATS) II, Columbia, has been approved, according to Alfred C. Sikes, director of the Missouri Department of Community Affairs.

The grant was one of eight totaling $150,971 approved by the Missouri Office of Aging. The funds are authorized for distribution by the Administration on Aging of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The grants were awarded in conjunction with regional councils on aging, established throughout the state for planning, coordination and evaluation of the needs of senior citizens.

Willis W. Marshall Jr., director of the state Office on Aging, said the money would be used to provide direct-service programs for the elderly in such areas as transportation, home health, senior centers and homemaker services.

Areas served by OATS II, Columbia, include Pettis, Johnson, Benton, Henry, Morgan and Lafayette Counties.

It was also announced that information about the OATS program, plus application blanks, would be provided at the Missouri Public Service Co. building, Fourth and Ohio, Monday and Tuesday.

Carl Franklin, chairman of the Pettis County OATS committee, also reported that Mrs. Jackie Kahrs, Smithton, has been appointed to the committee and will have information and application blanks available at her place of business in Smithton Wednesday through Saturday.

Any person with questions concerning the program should contact members of the county committee at the designated locations, Franklin said.

Storm Radar System Now In Operation

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — Radio station KMMO here announced Thursday night that it had purchased a $64,000 radar system for use in weather emergencies. The announcement came at a meeting of regional law enforcement officials and civil defense directors here.

Jack Abdon, news director of the station, said the new radar system will be used to supplement U. S. Weather Service reports from Kansas City and Columbia and provide more up-to-the-minute information about storm centers.

Abdon said the radar will be used with a "network of spotters" within a 60-mile radius of Marshall, which would include Sedalia. He said after a storm center is spotted on radar, local spotters would be notified to confirm the radar findings. Then, he added, the radio station would convey the information to law enforcement agencies and also be broadcasted by the station.

He said the station's system is a "baby-size" version of the one used at the U. S. Weather Service station in Kansas City and has a range of 250 miles.

The system can spot tornadoes, the height of storm centers, direction of travel and also determine an average hourly rainfall from "two-hundreds of an inch to five inches."

Abdon, who will operate the system, said he performed similar radar tracking operations while in the Air Force.

The unit has been operational for about 10 days and recently tracked successfully a small storm system three days ago over central Missouri, he said.

Abdon indicated that the radar unit itself cost $36,000. The remainder of the system's cost includes an emergency generator and tower, he said.

Phelps Files Suit Seeking Authority To Preside Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A suit seeking to give Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps authority to preside over the Missouri Senate was filed with the Missouri Supreme Court today by the attorney general's office.

It was another in a series of legal moves between Phelps and Senate President Pro Tem William J. Cason, D-Clinton, as a result of Cason's refusal to let Phelps preside June 15 in the closing hours of the 1973 legislative session.

Cason earlier had filed suit in circuit court seeking a ruling that the Senate can adopt rules allowing the president pro tem to preside. Phelps maintains the constitution makes him the presiding officer. However, the constitution also gives the Senate the right to set its own rules.

Pentagon, Colonel Guy Blamed for Ex-POW's Death

By KENNETH T. WALSH
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — Bitterness showed through her tears as the widow of a former prisoner of war blamed her husband's death on the Pentagon and the colonel who filed charges against him.
Looking weary and distraught, Sandra Kavanaugh, 22, said Thursday she plans to file a lawsuit against Col. Theodore W. Guy, of Tucson, Ariz., "and others in the military for causing the death of my husband."
Guy charged her husband, Marine Sgt. Al Larry Kavanaugh, 24, and "others with collaborating with the enemy while a captive in Indochina."
The young Marine shot himself to death Wednesday at the home of his father-in-law near here, police said. But officials were reluctant to term the death conclusively a suicide.

"We're still calling it a possible suicide," said Adams County Dist. Atty. Floyd Marks. "There is some evidence to indicate it might have been accidental, but our investigation is still under way."
Marks said a coroner's inquest might be requested if the autopsy report fails to determine exactly how Kavanaugh died.
"I do not plan to let this end with his death," Mrs. Kavanaugh said. "I plan to start legal action against Colonel Guy and others in the military for causing the death of my husband."
"I blame Colonel Guy and the Pentagon for his death," she said. "Without their insistence on pursuing those fictitious charges, my husband would be here today."
The Pentagon had no comment.

Guy was the highest ranking officer at the "Plantation" prison camp near Hanoi, where Kavanaugh was held. His charges included disrespect toward an officer, disobeying an order, insubordination and communicating and corresponding with the enemy.
Joan Temko, a civilian lawyer representing the widow, said the possible lawsuit may be based on grounds of "wrongful death."
Miss Temko stressed that the suit was only in the planning stages. She said chances of the court action's success would be seriously hampered if officials rule that the death was accidental.
Mrs. Kavanaugh, who family members say is two months pregnant with her second child, said her husband had become "increasingly worried about whether he would be treated fairly by the military."

Leper Colony In Vietnam Beautiful Oasis of Peace

QUI NHON, Vietnam (AP) — There's a beautiful oasis of peace in the war-torn country of Vietnam. It's a leper colony.
For more than 40 years it has nestled in a valley which spills over onto the golden sand beaches of the South China Sea 330 miles northeast of Saigon.
A rutted road of jagged rocks fit for only goats and Jeeps links the Qui Hoa Leprosarium with the seacoast town of Qui Nhon beyond the mountains which shelter it.
The leper colony is home to 1,042 Vietnamese who have no place else to go for help against the disease which ravages hands, feet and skin and has no guaranteed cure.
Fourteen Roman Catholic nuns—seven French and seven Vietnamese—the order of Franciscan Missionaire de Marie are the guiding force behind the facility founded in 1932 by a priest and doctor from France.
Despite decades of fighting which have swirled around its 175 acres, the leprosarium has never been abandoned. The foreign sisters left only once—between 1945 and 1955—but their Vietnamese counterparts stayed behind at their own request when the Viet Minh battled French soldiers on the grounds following the Japanese occupation of World War II.

There are now 14 main buildings and a village of 230 spacious, two-room houses erected to accommodate patients who brought their families with them. There's a school, a church and a four-wing hospital.
There are no paid employees and little money for upkeep so the patients do all the work themselves. Those who are to sick to leave their beds are cared for by the others.
They make bricks, erect buildings, cook food, clean rooms, manicure grounds, wash clothes, care for orphans whose parents have died of disease, catch fish in their own man-made pond and grow fruits and vegetables.

The South Vietnamese government pays about 15 cents per patient per day. The rest of the funds come through private donation.
Nguyen Thi Hoa, a shriveled 64-year-old woman who has spent 35 years watching her own hands and feet decay, says she loves Sister Antoine, the leprosarium's white-haired director, as she did her own mother.
As Miss Hoa talks of her years at Qui Hoa a slow trickle of tears inches down her cheeks and she reaches for Sister Antoine with fingers which are now only stumps. She says she's never had a visitor and has never been down to the sea she's stared at for more than 13,000 days of her life.
But the nuns have taught her a little French and have given her a doll to cradle and she says she's content to wait there with them for death.

Insurance underwriters worry more about the man who never gets really drunk but still manages to imbibe a lot of alcohol every day than they do about the individual who takes good care of himself except for an occasional bender.

Similarly, the explosive bridge player who takes an occasional plunge does better than the man who likes to bid every time it is his turn, whether or not there is a valid reason.

West's two-diamond call is one of those pointless bids. He won't be hurt there but the bid is not going to do him any good and may really hurt him.

This time it did. South went right up with dummy's king of diamonds and led a trump. West took his ace and led a second diamond. East could ruff or not. It didn't matter. If he did ruff he would be ruffing a trick that declarer would have had to lose later.

Now, let's see what would have happened if West had not overcalled. When he led the queen of diamonds South might still have played dummy's king, but he might have let it come around to his ace. Then, when the second diamond was led East would get a chance to trump a winner, not a loser.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

CARD SENSE

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	2♦	Pass	2♥
Pass	2 N.T.	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

♠ A Q 7 6 ♥ Q J 9 5 4 ♦ A 2 ♣ 6 3

What do you do now?

A—Bid three no-trump. No guarantee goes with this but you don't want to stop one trick short when you have any play at all for game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two no-trump your partner has bid three clubs over your two hearts. What do you do now?

Ann Landers

Unguarded Children Make Her Anxious

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please tell mothers, whether they live in big cities or small towns, that they must NEVER leave their small children alone.

I have a friend who causes me untold anxiety. She has a six-year-old boy, a five-year-old girl and a 10-month-old baby. She runs to the Post Office (three blocks away), to the grocery store and to her girl friend's house for a two-hour coffeeclatch. All day long she is running someplace and her children are alone. Her husband goes to school in a nearby city and gets home every other weekend. He condones her behavior. Last week they had dinner with some relatives and left their children by themselves until nearly midnight. Their apartment is next to a gas station, across the street from a supermarket and a restaurant. Anything could happen. We have many mutual friends who know she leaves these youngsters alone but nobody will say anything. They insist it's "not their business." I thought I'd try you. I know she reads your column all the time because she quotes you a lot. Please tell her, Ann. Thank you. —I Care

Dear L.C.: I care, too, and I hope that young mother comes to her senses before something terrible happens. The possibilities for disaster are endless.

It's strange how many people insure their homes, cars and jewelry. But their most valuable possessions — their children — they leave unguarded and trust to luck that some guardian angel will keep them safe and sound. When you see this column in the paper, please make sure SHE does.

Dear Ann Landers: I need help with our 15-year-old daughter. She is five-feet-four and weighs 160 pounds — at least. I am five-five and have weighed 125 pounds for the last ten years.

The girl has a beautiful face but she is enormous. I've offered her lovely clothes as an incentive to lose weight. I've bought her books on diet and nutrition, sent away for literature and reducing programs put out by weight-lossing groups, offered her psychiatric therapy — everything under the sun — but she is completely uncooperative and will have nothing to do with any of it.

"D" is a quiet person, obedient, respectful, good in school, never seems to have any trouble with anyone, but she has few friends and is content to be alone with her books and records. The thing that baffles me is that I have never seen her eat bread, potatoes or desserts, and she doesn't snack all day the way some teen-agers do. I can't figure out why she is at least 30 pounds overweight.

The girl is in good health but not interested in sports. Any suggestions you can offer will be greatly appreciated. — Dead End Mother

Dear Mother: The fact that you have never seen your daughter eat fattening foods does not mean she isn't eating them. There are closet eaters — as sure as there are closet drinkers.

Your attempted bribes give me a clue. Fat daughters who have slim mothers invariably have a special set of emotional problems. The fact that you mention YOUR weight gives me another clue. I suspect there is some deep-seated hostility and competitiveness in her relationship with you.

Take "D" to a doctor for a complete physical check-up. Let HIM suggest a diet and counseling — and you stay out of it. When you stop talking about her weight she'll probably start doing something about it.

Polly's Pointers

Housewife Needs Chair-raising Tips

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — We are so pleased with four antique plank chairs that we have just refinished and redecorated. However, we discovered that they are not quite high enough for our table and have tried to purchase something that would raise the legs, but have not been successful. Does anyone have any ideas? Thank you. — MARGARET

DEAR POLLY — I have many Pet Peeves but the two following ones bug me the most: A doctor gives you a prescription for $10 worth of pills. After taking a few you discover you are allergic to them and the whole bottle has to be thrown away. Why can't they write the original prescriptions for a smaller number of pills so one could test them? Another is the fact that women's slacks are not always made with pockets in them. I am an attendant in a laundromat and every day I see customers having to drag big purses around to carry change. If they had pants pockets they could leave these heavy purses at home. I hear complaints about this all the time. — MARY E.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. M. J. could display her sons' Scout awards the way I display my husband's medals from World War II. I bought an 8 by 10-inch picture frame (could be any desired size), covered the back with black felt and then put in a small picture of him in uniform and surrounded this with his awards. — BLANCHE

DEAR POLLY — Like Mrs. M. J. I am the mother of a Boy Scout who has won many awards and certificates. I protected these by buying matching frames of the needed size for each one and grouped them on his bedroom wall above the bed. Each time I go in that room I have a feeling of real pride over all the work he put into scouting. — A PROUD MOTHER

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. M. J. could display her sons' Scout awards as my mother did some of our swimming medals. Buy a picture frame of the desired size, construct a plywood box on the back that is one or two inches deep, according to the size of the medals. Attach them securely to this box, which might have a velvet lining, but do this so they can be moved in case others are to be added later. Pins on the backs of the medals might hold them to the cloth or short tacks could be used for hanging them. — JANI

K.C. School Bids for Fuel Oil Ignored

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Fuel oil suppliers have ignored a chance to sell 2.5 million gallons to the Kansas City School District for the 1973-74 term. The district asked 14 suppliers to submit bids Thursday on the oil to heat 47 schools. Only four firms responded and they said they couldn't bid now because of an oil shortage. Charles S. Dixon, director of procurement, said he had no idea what the district can do now because of the price freeze. Last year the district paid $342,000 for three million gallons at 11.4 cents a gallon. Fifty-four of the district's 102 schools have been converted to natural gas heat.

'Enemies List' Has Nearly 200 Names

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some call it Washington's newest Social Register, but the White House didn't intend it that way. Nearly 200 names of the rich, the famous and the not-so-famous who didn't get along with the Nixon administration are inscribed on a so-called "Enemies List."

John W. Dean III says the list came from White House files entitled Opponents List and Political Enemies Project.

The list itself and various related memoranda were turned over to the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday by the 34-year-old fired White House counsel scheduled to return to the witness chair Thursday for his fourth day of testimony.

Some of those named expressed surprise. Others considered it an honor, and several people in the hearing room were disappointed at not making what one called "Washington's newest Social Register."

Former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson, whom Dean described as having had a key role in the enemies project, said the lengthy list prepared by the late George T. Bell in 1971 was kept solely to insure that those named weren't invited to the White House for dinner.

Dean testified that priority targets were selected from the list by Colson and other White House officials, in keeping with a plan to "use the available federal machinery to screw our political enemies."

Dean admitted he drew up the plan on Aug. 16, 1971, and submitted it in a confidential memorandum to presidential Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman, domestic-affairs adviser John D. Ehrlichman "and others at the White House."

He recommended Lyn Nofziger of the Republican National Committee for project coordinator. His job would be to "determine what sorts of dealings these individuals have with the federal government and how we can best screw them; e.g., grant availability, federal contracts, litigation, prosecution, etc."

Dean also prepared a briefing paper for Haldeman to be used as the basis of a meeting with Internal Revenue Service chief Johnnie Walters. He complained that, because of a "lack of guts and effort" on the part of Republican appointees at IRS, the White House had been unable to:

— "Stimulate audits of persons who should be audited";

— Obtain IRS information "regarding our political enemies";

— Place President Nixon's supporters in the IRS bureaucracy;

— Or "crack down on the multitude of tax-exempt foundations that feed left-wing political causes."

Asked for his reaction to being named on the list, actor Paul Newman, "I am sending Gordon Liddy to pick up my award. I would like to thank John Mitchell, Jeb Magruder, John Dean III and Maurice Stans for making this award possible."

The longer list of opponents was divided into various groups and subgroups. Under "Politics," it named 10 Democratic senators, six House members, "12 black congressmen" and three "miscellaneous politicians."

There were 57 journalists and three newspapers listed under "Media," 10 celebrities, 21

"Academics," 53 in the business category, including 29 under "Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace and New National Priorities," 14 labor leaders and 18 organizations, most of which had one or more of their leaders named with them.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Testicle Problem Needs Treatment

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am very much concerned about my brother's problem. When he was born his testicles didn't descend. At about the age of 11 he went to a doctor to begin treatment. If the shots weren't effective, of course, an operation should have been performed on him. It seems he never got the operation. Now he's a grown man. Can anything be done for him, or is it just too late? Is it possible for him to have any kind of sex life. I don't know why my parents neglected this important situation.

Dear Reader — Undescended testicles should be treated in young boys before or at the onset of puberty. One or both testicles may be involved. If an undescended testicle is not brought down at this stage of life, and it is neglected until full maturity has been achieved, the testicle is usually not capable of producing live sperm cells. If one testicle is properly descended it can produce sperm, and such an individual will be able to father children. When neither testicle is descended before maturity is reached, then the man is almost always permanently sterile.

This does not mean that he will not be able to engage in sexual activity. The testicles have two main functions. One is to produce sperm cells, and the other is to produce sex hormones. The undescended testicles still produce testosterone and the individual involved can be just as masculine as any other man in all respects. He has the endocrine make-up for the normal amount of sex drive.

The testicles have to be located outside the body to produce suitable amounts of live sperm cells so that a man can father children. The control of the temperature of the testicles is essential to a man's fertility, but not to his production of male hormone.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have often wondered about the children of paraplegics, healthwise. After I read your article about paraplegics having children, I was prompted to ask a few questions. Wouldn't the cause of the paraplegia determine the health of the child? Could a disease cause this to be inherited, but obviously an accident would not? Then I was wondering, in particular, about polio. Is polio a disease that can be inherited or not? If a woman had polio when she was about 25 years old and a few years later gave birth to a healthy child, would this girl be healthy and, if she has other children, is there a possibility of the polio being inherited.

Dear Reader — Many women who have had polio have normal children. Polio is a virus disease and, while it may damage the nervous system that affects the muscles particularly, once the disease is over, the individual cannot transmit it to anybody else. It's no longer contagious, and it is in no way an inherited disease. You should think of it in the same light as chicken pox, measles, and other virus diseases which really are contagious diseases and not inherited diseases.

Paraplegics have damage to their spinal cord. This affects the movement and location of their muscles, and the amount of limitation depends on where the lesion is in the spinal cord, literally, how many nerve cells and which ones are affected. This is not the kind of problem that is inherited. I know of no instances of inherited or contagious paraplegic difficulties or any other difficulties that are transmitted by having such a problem.

Testimony of Dean is a real eye-opener

WASHINGTON — When it all begins to sink in, you are left with the chilling realization that no novel about the Mafia could ever be as disquieting, as nauseating, as John Wesley Dean's narrative about crime and cover-up in the White House.

Rowan

For Dean was talking about that real world which we all live in, and not just some limited kingdom of a Don Corleone or some other god-father, real or fictional.

Dean was revealing how a whole society can be debased when the lust for power grabs ruthless men.

Dean was talking about a lone war protester with a 10-foot sign in Lafayette Park whose very presence so irked President Nixon that then-White House aide Dwight Chapin set out to get a squad of goons to remove the protester.

The White House dealing in goon squads? So that is the point to which they dragged the right of dissent in America?

Dean was talking about White House employees in a Georgetown alley, nervously breaking into the home of columnist Joseph Kraft so they could tap his telephone — using technical information provided by a man who had just moved over from the telephone company to the White House.

So that is what this administration thought of freedom of the press, or the rights of privacy, or the laws forbidding burglary?

Dean was talking about a cynically Machiavellian White House chief of staff, H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, conniving and contriving to make every protest against President Nixon and his policies look like a plot attributable to George McGovern and Teddy Kennedy. And he was talking about a President who seemed paranoid beyond all public supposition as he ranted and railed because responsible intelligence agencies would not give him data to support the canard that he was the victim of some Democratic plot, or some foreign plot, to hound and harass him.

So this was the regard for truth which survived in the White House!

Dean was talking about an elaborate-to-insane plan to shadow Senator Kennedy to gather data which might be politically embarrassing. And he was talking about similar efforts to get compromising information on McGovern and Democratic party chairman Larry O'Brien, and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

So this was how low they were willing to sink, how far they were willing to erode all rights of privacy, in their fiendish hunger for power?

Nothing was sacred, nothing immoral, nothing beyond the pale when it came to re-electing the President.

If it meant trying to corrupt judges, they tried it — and even when they failed, they told stories and wrote memos pretending they had succeeded.

Unashamedly, they maneuvered and failed to get a Senate investigation headed by friendly Jim Eastland of Mississippi rather than that disgustingly independent Sam Ervin of North Carolina. Here, too, the White House faithful were glib in making claims as to which senator was "in the pocket" and certain to be kind to the "family."

One need not believe every nuance of Dean's testimony to be appalled; he has produced documentation aplenty to wipe away the doubts of all but the foolish or the hopelessly partisan that the Watergate crimes and cover-up right to the presidency of these United States.

The disheartening truth is that we may not have enough courts to try all the former and present White House and administration personnel who seem indictable on the basis of Dean's narrative.

In truth, the great curse of the whole business may be that it is too broad, too sinister, too mind-boggling for the mass of Americans to cope with it.

The likelihood is that a President who will tolerate goon squads, authorize burglaries of doctors' offices, demand phony "intelligence" data, claim White House innocence on the basis of an investigation that he knew never took place, is also probably too insensitive or arrogant to resign.

And so many Americans have come to think of Presidents as royalty that they will wring their hands and say there is nothing they can do about it. They will rationalize and theorize and apologize — and ask how in the world we can put in prison that veritable army of clean-cut young men who burglarized, stole, lied, spied, paid hush-money and otherwise obstructed justice and corrupted the American political process beyond anything ever tried in the nation's history.

Far more frightening than the ugly Gestapo incursions into American political life is the possibility that the people will just lie down and take it. If that happens, the most malevolent kind of crookedness will become standard operating procedure for American politics.

The abuse of power is Watergate crux

If it is possible to single out one aspect of Watergate that is the most reprehensible, it would have to be this — the abuse of power.

The Executive Branch of the federal government — especially the White House staff — is privy to a great deal of information and able to exert immense power, both of which can either be used responsibly or for other ends. Many of the Watergate principals evidently opted for the latter course.

Now John Dean III has turned over to the Senate Watergate committee a series of White House memoranda listing the names of "political enemies" of the Nixon administration who were to be singled out for special harassment.

Named were members of Congress, labor leaders, former government officials, show business personalities, film stars, advertising men, sports figures and even a symphony conductor. It is an amazing list.

A special category was assigned for journalists, according to Dean. He testified that President Nixon ordered aides to keep files on certain newsmen who could be dealt with after the 1972 election.

Although the entire "federal machinery" was to be used for such purposes, according to Dean, a special role was assigned to the Internal Revenue Service. Harassing audits were the technique here, although the memos would seem to indicate that the IRS was not entirely the handmaiden of the administration in this regard — to the nation's relief.

Two editors of the Long Island paper Newsday have verified that they were audited, which would seem to corroborate Dean's testimony in this specific case.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, a power in the House, already has ordered a preliminary investigation into whether the IRS has been used for political purposes.

Americans can hope that the answer will be no. But from what we've learned so far about Watergate, the fear that the answer will be yes may well be stronger.

THE BATTLE OF THE LEAKS

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — White House insiders can hardly believe that Larry Higby has managed to ride out the Watergate storm, avoid the public spotlight and keep his job as a presidential deputy.

Under the Byzantine regime of former staff chief H. R. Haldeman, the brusque, bookish Higby, still in his 20s, occupied the catbird's seat. He was Haldeman's Haldeman. Few got past Haldeman into see the President; few got past Higby into see Haldeman. They were known around the White House as "Big H" and "little h."

Taking his cue from Haldeman, "little h" was curt, arrogant, insensitive. Senators have complained to us that their calls to the President would be routed through Higby who handled them abruptly and, on at least one occasion, he kept a prominent senator on hold.

Higby was totally involved in almost everything Haldeman did. Haldeman even stopped by in his White House limousine to pick up Higby in the mornings and to drop him off at his home in the evenings. Our White House sources insist Higby couldn't possibly have been unaware of Haldeman's Watergate involvement.

Specifically, they claim that Haldeman's political aide, Gordon Strachan, who allegedly submitted the Watergate reports to Haldeman, went through Higby almost without exception. However, Higby has told the Senate Watergate investigators quite a different story. He has sworn that he was not privy to the Watergate information, that Strachan dealt directly with Haldeman on this subject.

Both Haldeman and Strachan have left the White House under a cloud, but Higby remains on the payroll in good standing. Indeed, he received a pay raise last February.

Footnote: Long after Haldeman's departure, he continued to visit Higby almost daily at the White House. Higby refused to talk to us. Through a press spokesman, however, he denied any involvement in the Watergate affair. He explained that he continued to see REST HOUSES: While most Americans vacation at overpriced and overcrowded resorts packed next to their neighbors like coins in a pocket, a few well-connected bureaucrats are able to loll in the nation's most picturesque spots — with the taxpayers picking up most of the tab.

From the lofty vistas of the Grand Tetons to delightfully deserted stretches of beach in the Virgin Islands, bigwigs from Congress, the White House and the government departments can enjoy the national parks in style.

The National Park Service, always ready to appease the powerful, operates 10 "rest houses" where VIPs can cavort without having to worry about the high cost of living.

The big guns of the Nixon administration have shown a special affinity for Camp Hoover in the Shenandoah National Park not far from Washington. Among those who have relaxed at this sylvan retreat are Attorney General Elliot Richardson, acting FBI Director William Ruckelshaus, Deputy Budget Director Fred Malek and, on a slow weekend, Ronald Walker, who heads the Park Service.

Others have ventured as far as St. Johns or St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands to soak up the sun during the winter months. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, White House telecommunications czar Clay Whitehead and Guy Simpler, an assistant to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, are among the winter tourists who enjoyed the surf and sand during the expensive season for only $10 a day. This modest fee, included the services of a government-paid caretaker.

Another visitor to the islands, Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., was irritated when other VIPs on the waiting list cut short his stay after only two weeks at the waterfront haven.

At Brinkerhoff Lodge in the Grand Tetons, the bill goes up to $45 a day for the park service's most luxurious villa. But those who have stayed there find it a bargain. The price includes maid service as well as a park ranger at the bureaucrat's beck and call.

None of these quarters, of course, are available to the millions of ordinary Americans who visit the parks.

Footnote: The Park Service would like to close down these fancy villas if the pampered bigwigs would permit it.

Moon's pull

The moon's gravitational pull affects more than the oceans. A full moon directly overhead may lift the North American continent six inches and the earth's atmosphere may bulge out a mile or more toward the moon. Even people respond to the moon's gravity, gaining and losing a fraction of an ounce with each rise and fall of the tides.

Personal slants

Unisex, and its problems

By DOUG KNEIBERT

In case you haven't noticed, some funny things are happening in our churches today. For instance, the United Church of Christ, a liberal Protestant denomination, held its national convention in St. Louis a few days ago and, among other things, made several pronouncements on the English language.

Determined to purge all "sexist" terms from its hymnals and other literature, such as the "brotherhood of man," the UCC voted for Unisex. For example, "mankind" will become "humankind," the all-encompassing pronoun "he" will now be "he or she," and "chairman" has given way to "chairperson."

I got to thinking about this weighty matter, and wondered what would have happened if Unisex had been in use back during those unenlightened times when English literature was flowering.

For instance John Donne, the 17th Century poet and clergyman, could not have written: "...any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee."

I am involved in humankind?

Then there was Alexander Pope, who pronounced that "The proper study of mankind is man." If this poor soul would have only had the benefit of Gloria Steinem and N.O.W., he could have written that the proper study of humankind is humans.

But really, if we are talking religion here, let's go to the source book, the Bible. A more blatantly sexist tract was never penned!

You need go no further than Genesis to see it: "God said, let us make MAN in our image..." If our forward-looking churches are going to be consistent, that should be changed to read, "man and/or woman."

Job is inexcusable, telling us that "Man is born unto trouble." Kindly make that either "humans" or "man AND woman." The psalmist should ask, "What is human beings, that thou art mindful of them?"

Then there is Paul, who everyone knows was a chauvinist of the first order. Instead of being "all things to all men," he could at least have been all things to all humankind.

Even in day-to-day affairs, if we're going Unisex in our language we've got trouble ahead. Who would jump at the command, "PERSON the guns!" on a man — oops — person-of-war? And what are you going to do with the Isle of Man? What would our youth do without "Hey man, what's happening?" Must we change our Monopoly sets so we can be elected chairperson of the board?

Frankly, I'm losing patience with the way the language is being humanhandled, as if some people thought they had a persondate to revolutionize English usage.

It's enough to make you lose faith in the humankind of persons.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

"It is true that you may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all of the people all the time." This well-known maxim was recorded in "Lincoln's Yarns and Stories," by Alexander McClure. The World Almanac says, McClure says that Lincoln added: "If you once forfeit the confidence of your fellow citizens, you can never regain their respect and esteem."

Pay Television Has Arrived In the Form of Cable Systems

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Pay television is glowing in the nation's living rooms after 20 dark years waiting in the wings. It is not coming in over the air but through the wires of cable television systems.

Admittedly, its debut has not been overwhelming. Probably not more than a few dozen communities have pay TV today. But its promoters forecast that within three to five years its impact will be enough to influence the production of more family motion pictures, underwrite Broadway plays and bring concerts and Las Vegas entertainment into the home.

"People want it. Pay TV's no longer a dirty word," said William Brennan, president of TelePrompTer Corp. and immediate past chairman of the National Cable Television Association. At the NCTA convention just concluded here pay TV was a major topic and the exhibit halls bulged with displays of the various systems.

Brennan, who heads the largest cable company in the country, said:

"The programs are here, at least for the first phase, which is first-run movies and blacked-out sports. Nothing is being taken away from commercial television. The next phase will be Broadway plays, concerts, Las Vegas shows. There are a vast number of things going on that don't get onto television."

Pay television has been eyed for years by entrepreneurs as a box-office bonanza. Where else, they reasoned, could you put on a movie and make a profit overnight. But whether people are going to go along with that theory in mass numbers is another question. Every on-the-air experiment in pay TV ended in failure.

On the cable systems, no pay TV operator has been able to sign up more than a third of the viewers hooked up to cable. But the owners see that as a profitable margin and say growth of pay TV will produce programming which viewers will find hard to resist.

Dore Schary, president of TheatreVision and onetime production head at MGM, announced that his company is expanding into five more states after a successful pilot operation in Sarasota, Fla. The states are Michigan, Missouri,

New Mexico, Pennsylvania and Texas.

He said his company, which is associated with Chromalloy American, plans to set up its own production company to make motion pictures, musicals, children's programs and other material for pay TV. But the movies, he said, would go to theaters first.

So far all of the movies that are being shown on pay TV have had a first run in the theaters.

According to Alfred R. Stern, president of Warner Cable Corp., a major question facing the new industry is how the customer will pay. Some of the systems charge a monthly fee averaging $6 and others sell on a per-program basis at a cost of $2 to $3 for each movie or sporting event.

Crusade Exceeds '72 Goal

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — The Saline County Cancer Crusade has collected $12,902.56 in its drive so far this year, exceeding last year's total by 12 per cent, it was announced at a meeting at the Farm and Home Savings Association building here Wednesday.

The report was made by Mrs. Evelyn Marshall and Mrs. E.G. Tanner, who said the amount included memorials from last year.

In other business, five-year service pins were awarded to Mrs. Robert Hisle, Mrs. Dan Heilman and Mrs. Gerald Sandidge, Marshall; Mrs. Tanner; Mrs. Robert Miller, Malta Bend; Mrs. Robert Jenkins and Mrs. Lee Shisler, Sweet Springs. Ten year service awards were given to Mrs. Wesley Tooker, Blackwater; Mrs. Ledru Kirchhoff, Blackburn; and Mrs. Beulah Nichols, Sweet Springs.

Officers for the new year were elected. They are, Mrs. Robert Miller, Malta Bend, president; Mrs. Evelyn Marshall, Marshall, vice-president; Mrs. Dorothy Kiser, Marshall, secretary; Roy Donnell, Marshall, treasurer. Two new board members were also elected: Mrs. Kirchhoff and Mrs. Ed Werneke, Nelson.

Mrs. Hubert McClary, Boonville, a member of the Missouri Division of Public Education Committee and Cooper County Education chairman, addressed the group.

Three Arrested In Connection With Shooting

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Three men were arrested by authorities here Thursday night a short time after the body of Michael Rice, 24, of St. Louis, was found on a city street.

Police said Rice was pronounced dead at a city hospital of gunshot wounds of the back and head.

Jimmie G. Crusoe, 21, Vincent E. Bolden, 19, and Rodney Cavin, 17, were arrested and charged with murder in connection with Rice's death, police said.

The trio was taken into custody in a vacant building, police said. Three handguns and a rifle were recovered from the building and police said tests will be performed on the weapons to determine if they fired the bullets that killed Rice.

Stag BEER

invites you to go to bat for recyding

Earn this Little League aluminum baseball bat by collecting aluminum cans!

This $9.95 value is yours when you bring 50 pounds of aluminum cans to a Stag recycling center.

Here's an even better reward for pitching in to recycling. Bring 50 pounds of aluminum cans—Stag's or anyone else's—to your Stag recycling center.

Ordinarily Stag pays you 10¢ a pound (about one half-cent a can) for the aluminum. Now you'll earn twice that in the form of an official aluminum baseball bat. (Of course, you can have the cash at 10¢ a pound, if you prefer.) It's a great team project. Aluminum bats won't chip splinter or break, so one bat serves an entire team.

Help clean up your neighborhood and get a jump on your summer sports fun. Go to bat for recycling. Offer for limited time only.

Return aluminum cans to your Stag Beer recycling center.

Squeals Affect Borg's Play

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg, tennis' teenage heartthrob, has a request for his young admirers at Wimbledon:

Don't squeal so much when he's playing. He's a tennis player, not a rock star, and the noise is liable to put him off.

Borg is a handsome 17-year-old Swede with fashionably long, blond hair. He's also the sensation of this year's Wimbledon.

To the youngsters, he more than makes up for the absence of all the top male stars who are boycotting the tournament this year.

But all the adulation is beginning to affect his play.

Thursday, in the outstanding match of the tournament so far, Borg—seeded sixth and the youngest ever to be given a seeding—very nearly dropped a five-set, third-round match against Karl Meiler, the German Davis Cup player. He recovered just in time to win 6-4, 3-6, 2-6, 6-3.

The other idol of the crowds this year, mercurial Romanian Ilie Nastase got a clean bill of health from a medical specialist he consulted about his back trouble and expects to play his third round match against Toshio Saki of Japan today.

Besides Borg, two other seeds—Roger Taylor of Britain and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia—are already through to the last 16. The only American in the seeded ranks this year is Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., and he is scheduled to play Bob Simpson of New Zealand today.

Also fighting for places in the last 16 will be Juergen Fassbender of Germany, seeded eighth, who plays Ray Keldie of Australia; Alex Metreveli, fourth seed from Russia, to play John Cooper of Australia, and Owen Davidson of Australia, seeded seventh, to play Eric Ewert of Australia.

Normally, by this stage of the tournament, several seeds have already been routed, but this year all eight seeds in both men's and women's singles have gotten through.

In women's singles matches today, top-seeded Margaret Court of Australia faces Kate Latham of Palo Alto, Calif.; second-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., meets Kerry Harris of Australia; Chris Evert, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and seeded fourth, plays Julie Heldman of New York, and Virginia Wade of Britain, seeded third, plays Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles.

The other women's seeds—Rosie Casals of San Francisco, Olga Morozova of Russia and Evonne Goolagong and Kerry Melville of Australia—all played their second round matches Thursday.

Players Do Not Agree With Stanford Institute Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pro football owners may believe that artificial turf is no different than real grass as far as injuries are concerned but the players aren't convinced.

The players association wants the National Football League to give the union's medical expert the raw data used by Stanford Research Institute to conclude that there is no difference between artificial and natural turf in the area of major injuries, but a poorer record for the synthetic grass with regard to minor ones.

The Stanford report was revealed at the league's annual owner's meeting, which ended in New York Thursday.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the NFL no longer will have the right of rejection over the play-by-play and color men who do the television broadcasts even though the league has never discussed with the networks their choice of announcers during his 13 years in office.

In order to dispel any lingering doubts, however, Rozelle said the league had asked that the right of rejection not be placed in any contract agreed to after the current pact expires this year.

The statement by Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association, on artificial turf came when representatives of the owners and the union met at an all-day session about the synthetic grass, a meeting that had been scheduled long before the Stanford report was made public Wednesday.

In his statement, Garvey called the Stanford report "totally inadequate" and demanded an impartial joint study, a moratorium on further installation of synthetic turf and that the league join the players in asking the Consumer Product Safety Commission to set standards for synthetic turf.

"It is time for the league to consider player interests instead of owner profits," he said.

Royals Lose 4th in Row

Trillo, Blue Handle KC

OAKLAND (AP) — Young Manny Trillo could not have picked a tougher spot for his major league baseball debut.

He was called up from the minor leagues by the Oakland A's Thursday afternoon and found himself in the starting lineup at second base last night.

His first time at bat came in the second inning with the bases loaded and the game scoreless. "Campy (Bert Campaneris) told me not to be nervous, to relax," Trillo said.

"But how could I relax at a time like that?" he said.

Trillo looped a single to right field that scored the first run in a 3-2 Oakland victory over the Kansas City Royals.

"They told me at 9:30 in the morning I was coming up to the major leagues. I got to Oakland at 1:30 and the game started at 6 o'clock," Trillo said. He was recalled from the A's Tucson farm team in the Pacific Coast League.

His hit helped Vida Blue pick up his seventh victory of the season. Blue needed relief help in the eighth inning after Fran Healey hit a homer to cut Oakland's lead to one run.

Rollie Fingers came in from the bullpen to retire four Kansas City batters in order to preserve the victory.

Oakland scored all its runs off losing pitcher Steve Busby. Singles by Deron Johnson and Gene Tenace, a sacrifice by Dick Green, a walk to Ray Fosse, Trillo's single and a sacrifice by Campaneris, got the runs home.

The inning ended on a bizarre note when Trillo was trapped off first base while Fosse scored what proved to be the winning run.

The A's protested the game because they felt a balk should have been called on Busby before Trillo was out.

Kansas City felt that Fosse should not have been allowed to score because plate umpire Larry Barnett called a balk but then had the decision reversed by the other umpires.

Manager Jack McKeon claimed time was out as soon as the balk was called and therefore the run should not score. However, the Royals did not protest and the A's protest was withdrawn after they won the game.

And Another American Moves On

Kristie Kemmer of the United States, is shown early in her match Thursday in the ladies singles with Miss Bashoff of South Africa. Miss Kemmer won, 7-5, 6-4. (UPI)

Oliver Too Much For the Cardinals

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "Some hitters pray to hit the ball," says Al Oliver. "I hit the ball and pray."

What Oliver means is that he usually makes contact and rarely strikes out. What he also means is that he frequently hits line drives—at somebody.

The Pittsburgh center fielder got four hits Thursday night, including a triple, two doubles and a single, driving in three runs as the Pirates defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0.

The triple and one of the doubles, however, were pops down the left-field line, the opposite direction for the left-handed batting Oliver.

"I welcome all cheap hits," said a smiling Oliver. "The surprising thing is I got cheap hits. That's something I usually don't do."

"Some guys are streak hitters. I hit the ball and hope for the best."

Pitcher Dock Ellis and slugger Willie Stargell also played key roles in one of the Pirates' better performances in the last couple weeks.

Ellis, 7-7, cut down the Cardinals on five hits with surgical precision.

And Stargell slammed his 300th career homer, his 23rd of the season.

Stargell's homer gave him one less than Ralph Kiner, who has the Pirate all-time high career mark with 301.

It came in the first inning following two singles and a double play, and it staked Ellis to a 2-0 lead.

Oliver, who raised his average from .274 to .283 with his four hits, cracked a run-scoring double to right center in the third, blooped a double to left for another run in the fifth, and hit a run-producing single in the sixth.

The Cards threatened seriously only in the eighth when they got three of their hits and loaded the bases. But Ellis pitched out of it, getting Ted Sizemore to hit into a double play to end the inning.

Golf Tournament

VERSAILLES — The Rolling Hills Golf Club Two-Man Best Ball Tournament will be held here Sunday.

The 60-team field will be vying for $900 in merchandise prizes over 18 holes.

WHCC Benefit Golf Tourney Plans Finalized

Plans for the first Walnut Hills Country Club Amateur Invitational Tournament have been finalized and the invitations mailed, according to Dr. Robert Stockwood, chairman of the WHCC men's golf committee.

"We are expecting more than 200 players from Missouri and Kansas," he said Thursday afternoon in making his announcement.

The tournament is more than just what club officials hope becomes one of the major local sports events of the year. It's a new approach to help raise funds for the Children's Therapy Center.

"The majority of the entry fees will go to the (Children's Therapy) Center," Stockwood said. "It, in our opinion, is one of the most important assets this community has... those who strongly support the center are always looking for new and different ways of raising money for it; we hope in some small way this will help," he concluded.

The two-day, 36-hole medal play event will be held July 28-29. Four flights, consisting of 208 golfers, will make up the field.

Stockwood added that a number of persons in the community have already donated money to the tournament to go specifically to the center. He cited Tom Cloney, Sedalia businessman and chairman of the therapy center board of directors; John Van Dyne, vice president of ADCO Manufacturing; A. H. Joy, president of Sedalia Implement Co.; C. D. Hieronymus, president of C. W. Flower Co.; Jim Finley of Home Heating and Air Conditioning Co.; Dr. Harold Daum, a Sedalia physician; and Ralph Walker, vice president of Walker Publishing Co.

Vukovich Hopes No. 13 Is Lucky Starting Spot

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — If Billy Vukovich wins Sunday's $374,000 Schaefer 500-mile auto race, the least surprised man in town will be former Indianapolis great Freddie Agabashian.

"The boy is a comer, a sure winner of the future," says the greying Agabashian. "He very well could win the driving title this year. And if he does, he'll be on his way."

Vukovich, 29, son of the driver who won Indy in 1953 and 1954, starts 13th in a 33-car lineup that will take the green starting flag at 1 p.m., EDT.

He qualified his Sugariprune Eagle with a four-lap average of 184.228 miles per hour for the 2½-mile Pocono International Raceway. Agabashian feels that speed will be competitive once the race gets underway.

"Vuky is in the right hands to go to the top," said Agabashian, who started 11 Indy races in the 1940s and 1950s but never won the big one.

Vukovich finished fifth at Indy in 1971 and came in second to winner Gordon Johncock in this year's rain-shortened, tragedy-marred race. His paycheck was $97,512.

Agabashian whose deep, gravelly voice is recognized everywhere he goes, says that in addition to Vukovich there are 10 other drivers who have a shot at the winner's payoff of close to $90,000.

"You've have to reckon with the team cars, particularly those of Parnelli Jones, Gulf, Sunoco and STP," he said.

Jones' drivers are Al Unser and Mario Andretti, both of whom have front row starts with qualifying speeds above 190 m.p.h., and Joe Leonard, the United States Auto Club champion the last two years and winner of the 1972 Pocono outing.

The Gulf team includes pole position winner Peter Revson, whose speed was 190.648, a track record, and Rutherford, the Texan who set a qualifying record of 198.413 to win the pole at Indy last month. Rutherford has a third row start in Pocono.

Driving for the Sunoco team are 1971 winner Mark Donohue and Gary Bettenhausen. The latter has the better start of the two, in the middle of the fourth row. Donohue, who was plagued with engine problems, will have to make his way up from the eighth row.

Kansas City Kings Sale Approved by the NBA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sale of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings was approved Thursday by the board of governors of the National Basketball Association.

Stockholders of Missouri Valley Pro Sports, Inc., agreed to sell the club at a meeting in Cincinnati earlier this week to Kings Professional Basketball Club, Inc.

Ray Evans, former star football and basketball player at the University of Kansas and now a Kansas City banker, is the new chairman of the board. H. Paul Rosenberg, president of Midland Lithographing Co. in Kansas City, is another principal figure.

The Kings were formerly the Cincinnati Royals. Joe Axelson, general manager since 1969 when the franchise was in Cincinnati, remains as president. The Kings moved to Kansas City after the 1972 season.

Sale price was announced as between $5 million and $5.2 million. The new owners take over $1.9 million in deferred obligation contracts, mostly with players and Coach Bob Cousy.

Secretariat Gets No. 1 Treatment at Arlington

CHICAGO (AP) — Number one, that's Secretariat. And that's how he's being treated for his Arlington Park appearance Saturday.

Meadow Stable's Triple Crown winner, who arrived here Thursday, two hours late because of bad weather, will start from the number four post—but he will be listed as number one in the program.

But the bettors will have only two numbers to worry about, since My Gallant, Our Native and Blue Chip Dan will be coupled as an entry for betting purposes, although each races for different owners. For instance, if a bettor places a wager on number two, My Gallant, he automatically gets Blue Chip Dan and Our Native.

Another number of interest are the early odds, which list Secretariat as 1-20. If the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes winner goes off at 1-20, he would pay the Illinois legal minimum of $2.10 for a $2 bet.

Some numbers which could change Saturday are the Arlington Park attendance mark of 50,639, set July 4, 1941 and the track record of 1:46 4-5 for 1½ miles, set by Damascus, under 126 pounds, in the 1967 American Derby.

Secretariat set attendance records in the Derby and Preakness and ran before Belmont's second biggest crowd. The son of Bold Ruler ran the fastest Derby ever, 1:59 2-5 for 1¼ miles; the second fastest Preakness, 1:54 2-5 for 1 3-16 miles, and then smashed the American record for 1½ miles by winning the Belmont in 2:24. His Preakness time still is in debate, with two unofficial clockers having caught him in 1:53 2-5.

Secretariat will carry 126 pounds, the same weight he carried in his Triple Crown victory. The other three colts will tote 120 each. Post time is 6:18 p.m. EDT, with television coverage, by ABC, set 6-6:30 p.m.

Four-hit Shutout For Dick Woodson

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer
There's no place like home so Rod Carew decided to steal it.
The Minnesota second baseman took his 90-foot stroll in the third inning and a little faster than you could say fastball from Pete Broberg, a runner at third had become one run for the Twins.
Minnesota went on to score a 4-0 victory over the Texas Rangers on Dick Woodson's five-hitter.
Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit overcame Milwaukee 8-6; Oakland edged Kansas City 3-2; Chicago blanked California 2-0; Baltimore stopped New York 6-3 and Cleveland and Boston split a pair of games, the Indians taking the opener 4-2, the Red Sox the second game 16-7.
The question, what's a world champion like you doing in a place like this, isn't being asked around Oakland anymore. The A's, who had been occupying some low-class places—like sixth and fifth—are back in first.

And it seems their No. 1 pitcher of two years ago, Vida Blue, is also back, all of which could leave the rest of the American League West in back of Oakland for quite some time.
Blue only surrendered three hits, before giving way to Rollie Fingers in the eighth, for the victory over Kansas City. It was Blue's third triumph in a row, raising his record to 7-3.
It's a game of streaks and no one knows it better than Detroit and Milwaukee. After losing eight straight, the Tigers have won their last five including Thursday's victory over the Brewers who have dropped five in a row.
Willie Horton, who credits dropping over 25 pounds during the off season for his 343 batting average, hit a two-out, two-run single for tying and go-ahead runs.

In Anaheim, Terry Forster bailed starter Steve Stone out of a seventh-inning jam to save his 12th game and the White Sox made their two unearned runs stand up.
The Boston Red Sox rattled Fenway Park for 19 hits and 16 runs, but ended up playing 500 ball for the day because the Indians had taken the opener on John Ellis' three-run homer.
Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the first, a four-run fourth and a six-run sixth put a victory in Boston's win column.
Baltimore moved to within one game of the first-place Yankees in the AL East by sweeping the two-game series with New York. Don Baylor's triple off Matty Alou's glove drove home the winning run.
In the National League it was Philadelphia 11, New York 4; Pittsburgh 6, St. Louis 0; San Francisco 2, Houston 1 in 10 innings; Atlanta 3, Los Angeles 2 in the first game, the Dodgers 8, Braves 3 in the second; Montreal 5, Chicago 4 in 18 innings to complete a suspended game and the Cubs 4, Expos 2 in the regularly scheduled game.

Sedalia BJ Loses; Angels Drop First

A three-run home run by Steve Allison, coupled with the five-hit pitching of Dan Bestgen, was too much for the Sedalia Merchants Thursday night at Tipton, as Tipton posted a 5-3 win in Central Missouri Ban Johnson baseball action.
But the big news in the league came from Columbia, where Centralia ran its winning streak to five in a row by handing the Columbia Angels their first setback of the season, 4-3.
Marshall kept pace with western division leader Boonville by defeating California, 6-4. Boonville slipped past Jefferson City, 4-3.

Centralia, which at one point slid to 2-6 in the CMBJ east, now stands at 6-7 and can't really be counted out of contention.
However, the Angels maintain a commanding lead in the five-team eastern division with an 11-1 record.
Jefferson City had a chance to gain a full game on the Angels, but Boonville took care of that with a 4-3 win. Jefferson City has a record of 6-4.
Terry Hudson yielded the three-run homer to Allison in the fourth inning. Hudson was charged with the loss; he got relief help from Dave Nash and Bob Pledge.
Sedalia now stands at 3-8 in the western division with the loss.

Brady, Goodman Meet in Finals

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Elaine Brady of Winfield and Sheri Goodman of Wellington were ready to tangle today for the Sunflower State Match Play golf championship.
The two advanced to the finals Thursday with easy victories. Mrs. Brady turned back Marybelle Boyd of Wichita 4 and 3.
Miss Goodman won eight straight holes to oust Annie Stevens of Wichita 9 and 7.

'Academy Frank'

Academy Pays Dividends For White and Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals wasted no time pinning a nickname on rookie Frank White.
White has been known as "Academy Frank" since the day he was called up by the Royals from their Omaha farm club in the American Association.
The nickname was a natural. White is the first graduate of the Royals Baseball Academy at Sarasota, Fla., to don a major league uniform.

"No, I didn't think when I went to the academy in 1970," says White, a shortstop and second baseman, "I'd ever play with Kansas City. I always hoped."

White's hopes became reality less than three weeks ago when shortstop Fred Patek was placed on the 15-day disabled list. After playing second base at Omaha, White was inserted into the Kansas City lineup at shortstop.
"I've already found out one thing," the 22-year-old White says, "I can play defense up here. It will take a little while to get to hitting. . . at least one time around the league."
Baseball isn't new to White as it is for many of the prospects who wind up at the academy, founded three years ago by Royals owner Ewing Kauffman as a spawning ground for major league material. Academy Frank has been playing baseball since he was 13.

"I didn't play baseball in high school," White notes, "but I played Connie Mack, Ban Johnson and Casey. Stengel League baseball."

White used to climb up in the football bleachers at Lincoln High School, located on a hill outside old Municipal Stadium where the Athletics and then the Royals used to play, and nibble on barbecue and watch the games night after night. Yes, and dream of becoming a big league ball player.

"I saw a lot of stars play in the stadium," White recalls. "And I had two idols. . . Hank Aaron and Jackie Robinson. I never saw Robinson but I always admired the things he stood for and what he accomplished."

White might never have tried out for the academy if it hadn't been for his wife, Gladys. He was working as a shipping clerk when he heard about the academy tryouts.

"They invited me to come over," White explains, "and I put it off for a couple of days. I don't think I would have ever gone if it wasn't for my wife. She wanted me to give it a try."

White went through the running, throwing, hitting and infield routines and the speed tests.

"Norm Siebern was a scout for the Royals," White says. "He was watching me and said I looked like a hitter. He liked the way I ran and the way I threw."

During his brief time with Kansas City, White has made some sensational plays in his shortstop role. He has impressed Manager Jack McKeon.

"I have no intention of sending White back to Omaha with Patek coming off the disabled list," McKeon emphases. "I think White can help us. He can play shortstop, and he can play second base. He has proven that."

People laughed at Kauffman when he set the wheels in motion at the academy which takes youngsters, many of whom have never played baseball, and attempts to prepare them for professional baseball careers.

Kauffman has never believed the academy would grind out major league players by the carload. He thinks that once in a while, the academy will produce a player who will make it to the majors.

Like Academy Frank, a budding star with an abundance of confidence in himself.

"I can be respectable in the majors," White concludes. "I won't embarrass anybody up here."

Whisler Eyes 2nd Firecracker Checker

ODESSA, Mo. (AP) — Fred Whisler of Independence, Mo., has switched from a Mustang to a 1973 Gran Torino in his attempt to win his second straight Firecracker 100 at the I-70 Speedway Saturday night.
Vying with Whisler will be Terry Bivins of Shawnee, Kan., who came within seven laps of taking the top prize before his engine failed last year; Dave Wall of Kansas City, who took second place a year ago, and Don Conner of Shawnee Mission, Kan., this season's point leader at I-70. Thirty late model stock cars are entered.
The Firecracker 100 carries $7,500 in prize money, with the winner getting $1,200. Whisler averaged 92.792 miles an hour last year, running the 54 miles in just under 35 minutes.

Bivins has finished first and second in two races in the past two weeks at Denver and Oregon, Wis. Conner won the 25-lap main event at I-70 last Saturday.

Other entries include Larry Phillips and David Goldsberry of Springfield, Mo.; Bob Williams of Independence, Joe Wallace of Lawrence, Kan., and Bill Crane of Claycomo, Mo.

Palmer, Back in the Thick of Things

Some of "Arnie's Army" follows Arnold Palmer from the scorers tent after Palmer (center) finished the opening round of the Western Open Thursday in Chicago. Palmer carded a five-under 66 to gain a share of the first-round lead with Rik Massengale and Bruce Crampton. (UPI)

Palmer, Crampton, Rik Massengale Tied at 66

CHICAGO (AP) — Millionaire golf pro Arnold Palmer and soon-to-be millionaire Bruce Crampton are first round leaders of the $175,000 Western Open along with Rik Massengale, winner of a mere $5,791 this year.

The trio conquered swirling winds and greens marked by heels and spikes at the ancient 6,654-yard Midlothian Country Club with five under par 66s in Thursday's opening round.

The score is the only thing the long-haired 1968 Western Amateur titlist, with a tie for 33rd place in the Houston Open his best finish this year, has in common with Palmer and Crampton. The 66 is his best competitive round since joining the PGA tour in 1970.

The steady, conservative Crampton is aiming for his fifth tourney victory of the season and his second in a row after taking the American Golf Classic last week to pass Jack Nicklaus and top the money winning list with $204,209. He could finish as low as 10th in this tourney and still win enough to put him over the $1 million mark in career earnings.
Nicklaus and Miller are not competing in the Western Open, which carries a first prize of $35,000.
Palmer, the focus of attention from the crowd of 13,500, returned to his old blade putter for the first time since winning the Bob Hope Classic in Palm Springs this spring, his last victory.

Only one stroke off the pace at 67 as the tourney enters its second round today are Billy Casper, who said he took all last week off and didn't touch a club; J.C. Snead, who hit all 18 greens in regulation and included a 40-foot putt among his birdies, and Hale Irwin, who holed out a 20-yard pitch for birdie three on 17.

Nine players were bracketed at 68 and a dozen at 69, including Lee Trevino and defending champion Jim Jamieson.

Utz into 16th-place Tie With Sprint Car Victory

(Democrat-Capital Service)

DES MOINES, Iowa — Bill Utz, Sedalia, with his first-place finish in last week's 30-lap feature at Oklahoma City, has moved into a 16th-place tie with Jerry Camfield, Argenta, Ill., in the International Motor Contest Association's sprint car division, according to standings released Thursday.

It was Utz' first outing of the season with the IMCA in the Corn Belt Racing Chevrolet, owned by David Van Patten of Des Moines.

Thad Doshier of Topeka, Kan., still has a commanding lead in the division over Kenny Weld, York, Pa. Jan Opperman, Beaver Crossing, Neb., is in third place, while the balance of the top five is made up of defending division champion

Ray Lee Goodwin, Kansas City, and Gene Gennetten, Gladstone, Mo.

Writing Number One, Acting Comes Second

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — There's a slim, skillful new novel out these days called "Who Is Carla Hart?" It's the third book and second novel from that beautiful and brainy actress Joanna Barnes.

Her first book was about decorating. Then came a successful novel, "The Deceivers." This writing is not, however, a case of an actress who finds time hanging heavy on her hands. Joanna Barnes considers herself a writer first, actress second.

"The writing came first," she says. "I began writing when I was eight and studied writing at Smith. The acting came much later."

Actually, she says, she much prefers writing — "it is something you do yourself."

"With acting," she says, "if you win an Oscar or an Emmy, you have to thank everybody. If you write a book it is completely our own."

Her two careers are independent of each other. She can — and does — interrupt one to pursue the other. While she was working on "Who Is Carla Hart?" for example, she was offered a "great" guest-starring role on Marcus Welby. She pushed her typewriter aside, did the role, then came back and picked up where she had left off.

And, similarly, she can be in a movie or a TV show, then break it off for a week and work on her book.

If this new book is sold for a movie, she would very much like to take a shot at writing the screenplay. But she doesn't see herself playing the lead role, that of a glamorous movie star.

"I don't consider myself glamorous," she says, but she is, and extremely so.

It may be a moot question, because she isn't too optimistic about a movie sale. Her book is about Hollywood and she is enough of a realist to know that Hollywood films seldom do well, hence there is no rush to buy Hollywood stories.

"Maybe I should have set the story someplace else," she says. "I could have set it anywhere — it's the story of a woman gradually going bananas. That can happen anyplace — but why should I set it in Poughkeepsie when I know Hollywood so well?"

People are guessing who she really meant by Carla Hart and her other characters. She says they are purely fictional.

"Carla Hart isn't modeled after anybody," she says. "I can't do that — I can't bridge the gap between reality and fiction."

She will write more, but that's only third on her priority list — "first things first," she says, "and, first, I am involved in a glorious love affair — and then I have to get a tan. I'll write another book after that."

Miles Proves More Than an Actress

By JOAN CROSBY

BURBANK, Calif. — Vera Miles looks pretty and fragile in a pale blue dress seated at a sunny corner table of the Coral Room, the dining room at the Walt Disney Studio.

Vera is pretty and fragile but the fragility is a facade for a woman who can take care of herself — do her own housework, help in the running of a ranch and even, if necessary, help in the birthing of a foal.

She is a modern-day version of those pioneer women she often plays, like the one in "One Little Indian," a Disney film set for release this summer.

She and her new husband, Bob Jones, known as B. J., live in a ranch in the Malibu Canyon area of the western San Fernando Valley, an exquisite spot of rolling hills, jagged rocks and, just over the hills, the Pacific Ocean.

They are breeding quarter horses. At the moment they have four horses, including a colt, two dogs, four banty chickens and a "very pregnant" Russian Blue cat.

The colt is three weeks old and Vera and B. J. read all the books on foaling. "But I felt panic because how do you say to a mare, 'Lie still, dear and I'll take care of this.' There can be so many problems in foaling."

We checked the mare constantly for symptoms and planned to have a vet deliver the colt. I also was sure I'd wind up midwifing all by myself.

"Then one morning I went to the corral to see how she was and there was this other creature there. For a moment I thought the big dog had gotten in. Then I realized it was the new-born foal who gave me a very funny look, because after all he had never seen a human until that second."

"He is huge and strong and an ornery little male chauvinist blankety-blank. If he doesn't want his mother to eat hay, he straddles her head. If she tries to nudge him out of the way, he chews her ears."

Vera loves animals so much she is, as she says, "hard-pressed to find one I don't like." But she did during the filming of "One Little Indian."

She worked with a camel and, "I finally found an animal for which I didn't have empathy. They are gamey and their disposition is as overwhelming as their smell. Now I understand the problems Arabs have."

Vera has already completed two television shows for next season. In one, a Columbo, she plays a double murderer. The other, a Movie of the Week, is called "Runaway."

Reading Isn't Proving as Entertaining as Working

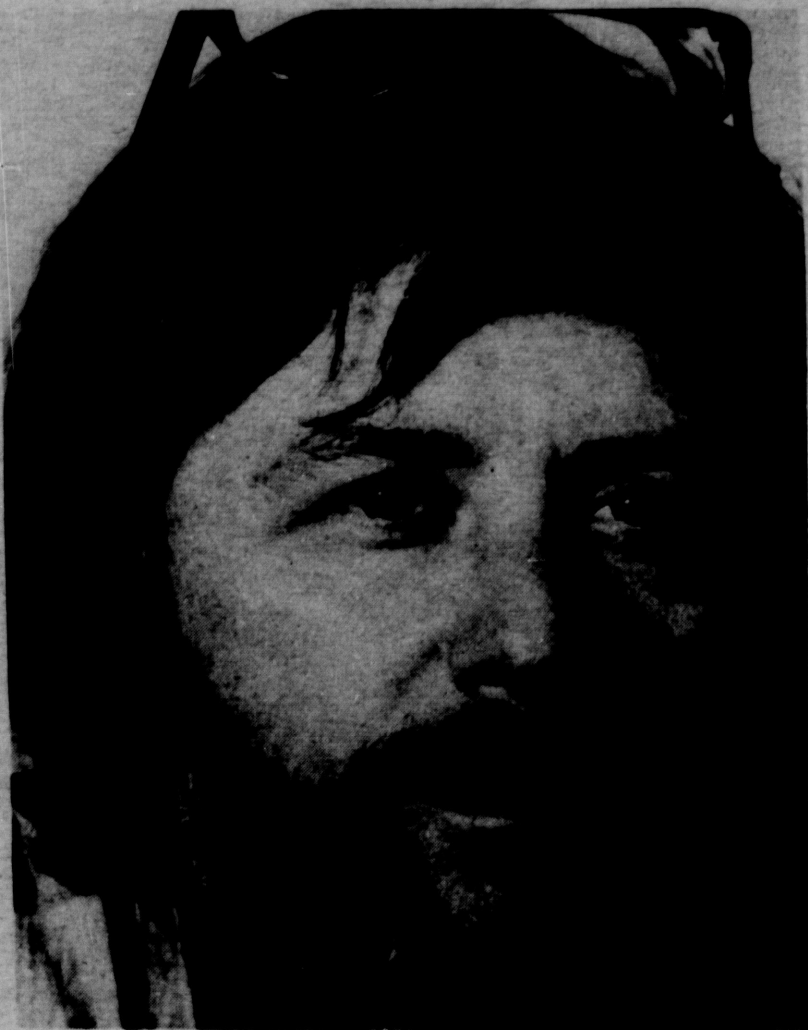

By JOAN CROSBY
BURBANK, CALIF. — Bob Claver is catching up on his reading and, much as he likes to read, he's not too happy about the fact.

Bob is an executive producer of two shows, he established The Partridge Family and the new, the Girl With Something Extra. Because of the long writers' strike Bob is a producer with nothing to produce.

"We have two good workable scripts ready for The Partridge Family," he says, "and nine others that could be fixed by a writer if he could come to work. We have the pilot already complete for The Girl With Something Extra and several story lines, but we can't film story lines."

Claver, whose first job in Hollywood was predicted on the end of the last major writers' strike, nearly a decade ago, is very pessimistic about this strike.

"There is talk of directors striking next and more talk that, if that happens, the studios will shut down. A massive number of writers and actors are beginning to be affected, to say nothing of the technical people. One man I know, a good man in

Bob Claver

Ahna Finds a Partly Packed Suitcase Indispensable

By JOAN CROSBY
HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. — These days, when you're a talented and rising young actress, the best thing to do is keep a suitcase dusted off, handy and partly-packed.

Witness the case of Ahna Capri, presently on the movie screens in "Payday," and on TV screens this past season in, among other shows, Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law, and Search.

For instance, she recently has returned from three months in Hong Kong making a film presently called "The Deadly Three" with John Saxon and Bruce Lee. (Fans with long memories will recall Lee as the Green Hornet's Kato. He's now Hong Kong's biggest star.) She got the call to head for Hong Kong with barely enough time to pack and get to the airport. Once aboard, she discovered the script which had been sent her was not even for the film she was going to make.

Another time, Ahna was vacationing in northern California when she got a call from her agent to fly right back to Los Angeles and report to work the next morning for the Owen Marshall episode.

"My hair needed coloring — after all I didn't expect to be working — so I had to pay my hairdresser $100 to open her shop very early and color it for me," she says.

Ahna, who was Anna when as a growing teen-ager she was a regular in the series, Room For One More, was born in Germany of Hungarian parents. (She chose the Ahna spelling because that's the way she wants her name pronounce.) As a child — and a very shy one at that — she was Katy, the TV spokes-tot for Kaiser aluminum. "I was 10 at the time," she recalls.

At 14 she was placed under contract by Warner Brothers and dropped, "at the age of 16."

"It was my growing up time. They wanted to keep me young for the series. But every time we had a production break, I'd return a different girl having matured and having lightened my hair. They were upset when I turned out more voluptuous than the actress playing my mother."

Ahna adds, "I was very frustrated because they had 18-year-olds under contract and they were playing adult roles. I couldn't understand why two years made such a difference."

Eventually, Ahna decided to go to New York and study acting. She did, with Stella Adler. She spent two years working hard and learning. "I got over my shyness in New York. It's survival time there. It was very good for me, working with Miss Adler and being exposed to her freedom and earthiness."

Now Ahna says she has reached the point where she would rather do a good role than make a lot of money.

"Most TV series," she says, "are not geared for women. We either play receptionists or the one who goes and does the research. Besides, I really hate getting up at 4:30 in the morning working on something I don't enjoy."

his field, hasn't worked since December.

"Personally, I wouldn't be surprised if the season didn't start until next January. Then how long would it run? Only until about April, because after that viewing falls off."

"What about those who have settled with the guild and already are filming their shows for next season? I can't believe a network will open a season with a rerun of one show leading in to a new episode of another one."

If things ever get settled, Bob will still have something to worry about. His popular The Partridge Family is scheduled opposite All In the Family.

"I hope we can get a 25 rating share of the audience, which should get us renewed for still another year. That would take a minor miracle. I'm not all that thrilled with the time slot because I don't think All In the Family is ready to fade yet."

"But," he says, smiling, "TV alone is a miracle to me. The miracle is that you can do a 60-minute or a 30-minute show on a weekly basis and still turn out a product that is generally well-done and entertaining."

If Claver can handle a major miracle like that, a minor one should be a snap for him — as soon as the strike's end lets him get out of his books and back to work.

Bill Bixby and his gorgeous wife, Brenda Benet, were chatting with Chris George and his equally gorgeous wife, Lynda Day George. Bixby said that his upcoming series The Magician, will differ radically from the pilot — not as hokey, Bill says, with more emphasis on the magic.

A LOADED LOCO
WARSAW (AP) — Horrified railroad officials frantically tried to stop a giant locomotive as it sped towards a string of freight cars filled with gasoline.

Red stop signals, warning torchlights, whistles and horns, had failed to get the driver to respond.

A line superintendent phoned workers further down the track to place warning detonator charges in the path of the speeding engine.

After the second charge exploded the train came to a screeching halt.

The explosions woke up driver Jan Golawski and fireman Waldemar Zalewski. Both were drunk and had fallen asleep.

The two men were jailed for 18 months.

Social Significance Is the Importance of Emergency!

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. — Kevin Tighe plays one of the firemen-paramedics on NBC's Emergency! series. It's a hit and, naturally, he likes being associated with a success.

He doesn't feel that it's a great artistic challenge for him, as an actor.

"I enjoy the show," Tighe says. "I'm working and I'm earning a living, and that's good. But it's not a show for actors. There's no acting to it at all, it's strictly an action show. There's no writing in it, either, and it's not a show for directors. It's just action."

That may all sound as though he's very negative about Emergency! He's not. He feels as though the program has done and is continuing to do a great deal for the public good.

The way he sees it, the show is making a "significant contribution" — but not in the field of entertainment.

"The show," he says, "is one with great social significance. Because of our show, many towns and cities are beginning serious programs in emergency medicine. I was in West Virginia, and I learned that, because of Emergency!, they had begun a program of voluntary paramedics, like volunteer firemen."

"I've heard of many other places where similar programs have begun — because of our show. I think that is very important and I'm proud of it."

As an actor, however, he is less than fulfilled. Tighe is a serious actor, and, because of that, he isn't planning on staying with the show beyond his present contract.

"I have a seven-year contract," he says. "Any more than that and I'd be climbing the walls."

Kevin Tighe

He started out to be a neurosurgeon and studied a lot of other scientific things, like child psychology. Somehow, in college, he switched to drama, liked it, and decided to become an actor.

Study-oriented, he threw himself into his new field of endeavor. He studied seriously here, then studied in England, Ireland and Czechoslovakia.

In England, he has an opportunity to work with the National Theater but he would have either had to renounce his American citizenship or marry an English girl to accept the offer, and both those steps seemed a bit too drastic.

All those experiences abroad, however, instilled in him a love of traveling which persists. During this season's hiatus from Emergency!, for example, he went to India, where he spent two months in a remote village visiting a friend who is a doctor and poet.

He pitched in and helped around the village. His socially significant contribution to mankind isn't limited to his work on Emergency!

Music Oscars

Please tell me how many Oscars and nominations "The Sound of Music" received. — Jodi Rosenbloom, Skokie, Ill.

"The Sound of Music" received Academy Awards in 1965 for Best Film, Best Director (Robert Wise), Sound, Music and Film Editing. Nominations went to Julie Andrews for Best Actress and Peggy Wood for Best Supporting Actress.

Early Falk

I've been trying to remember Peter Falk's series of the '60s. Can you tell me the name and year? — L. Alexander, Orlando, Fla.

Peter Falk's (Columbo) short-lived series aired in 1965 and was called Trials Of O'Brien.

Western Star

I say Steve McQueen starred in Wanted — Dead or Alive in the '60s. My husband disagrees. — Mrs. Mary Joice, Chicago, Ill.

Your're right. Screen idol Steve McQueen starred in the otherwise not exceptional western, Wanted — Dead or Alive. The show premiered in 1958.

Blues Director

I would like to know who directed "Lady Sings the Blues." — Janet Nudel, Morton Grove, Ill.

"Lady Sings the Blues," a semi-biographical account of the late blues singer Billie Holiday, was directed by Sidney J. Furie. The 1972 film starred Diana Ross, Billy Dee Williams and Richard Pryor.

Sci-Fi Tale

Please tell me who starred in "Fantastic Voyage." — Patti Giffin, Mundelein, Ill.

This entertaining science fiction story of a medical team reduced to microscopic size, injected inside the human body, had an all-star cast. Stephen Boyd, Raquel Welch, Edmond O'Brien, Donald Pleasance, Arthur O'Connell, William Redfield and Arthur Kennedy starred in the 1966 feature.

Singer Boone

Did Pat Boone have his own TV show in the '50s? — Mrs. D.J., Chicago, Ill.

The Pat Boone Show made its debut in 1957. Among the big names who appeared on Boone's variety series were Andy Williams, the Crosby Brothers (Bing's sons) and Peggy Lee.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — On Banacek, NBC's successful mystery, Murray Matheson plays Felix, the urbane Bostonian who is Banacek's (George Peppard) source of all exotic information.

This is a typical part for Matheson, who, in his 20-plus years in Hollywood has become typed as the polished and sophisticated Englishman-Bostonian-Canadian — he's always the soul or urbanity.

It isn't a role which comes naturally, at least it did not at first. Matheson's origin is far from the parts he most often plays. Actually, he's the product of an Australian sheep station.

His father had a 3,000-acre — not over-large, by Australian standards — sheep station between Melbourne and Adelaide.

"My earliest memory," he says, "is working as a drover, following after my father. I can still see him, his back completely black — covered with flies, the scourge of Australia."

His next important memory came when he was 12, and saw a touring company do a production of "Sally." He says he knew, from that day on, that he wanted to be an actor. His parents were horrified but he persisted.

There isn't much opportunity to act on a sheep station so he quickly concluded that he would have to leave — not only the station but Australia itself. When he was 19 he bought himself a one-way ticket to England.

He studied acting in London but he says his major problem was losing his Australian accent. He managed that. Later, he went to New York, and TV producer Worthington Minor wanted him to play American parts, for which he'd have to lose his brand-new English accent.

He tried, but says that in the process of Americanizing his speech, his personality was changed too. So Minor told him to forget it and just be himself. Nevertheless, the result of all this monkeying around with his speech patterns resulted in his present mode of speaking. It is, he says, "a mid-Atlantic accent" — here, we think he sounds English and in England they think he is American.

"It's fine for me," he says. "I can play anything now."

That old saw about taking the boy out of the farm applies to Matheson. There is still some farmer in him. He has a 250-acre farm about 150 miles north of Toronto, Canada, which he hopes eventually to make his headquarters.

He bought 300 acres and a farmhouse there for $8,000 in 1948. He sold some acreage for $10,000 later and gave them access for a power line for $20,000, so it's been a sound investment.

He goes there as often as he can, and rides — a sport he still enjoys and considers a throwback to his childhood. And his back is seldom, if ever, covered with flies.

Shelley Morrison, the ex-Flying Nun's Sister, Sixto, and her date, Walter Dominguez, were natty. He had on a ruffled pink shirt which, Shelley said, he bought to go with her new dress — which was black. (Wouldn't a white shirt have done as well?)

Shelley's dress wasn't really new. She says she bought it a while ago, but it was too tight. She vowed to diet herself into it, and she did — and dieted so much the dress is now loose on her.

TV Scout Reports

One of the funniest of the NBC pilots, shown in excerpts, was Lotsa Luck, another British adaptation (like All In the Family, Sanford and Son and A Touch of Grace.)

Sample of the dialogue: Mother Kathleen Freeman calls her son's girl friend a tramp. Son Dom DeLuise says, "Just because a girl has been mugged a few times doesn't make her a tramp."

Wait until you see Diana, which stars Diana Rigg. One scene in the pilot has her accidentally in bed with a drunken gentleman, who is married to someone else, and because he's drunk and she's tired, they both doze off. And you say TV is not growing up!

Around the set of The New Dick Van Dyke Show, they call costar Richard Dawson "Mr. Mouth." It's a compliment. He's a funny guy.

Banacek will carry the load on NBC Mystery Movie next season. Eight episodes of the George Peppard mini-series will be made. They will shoot four each of The Snoop Sisters, with Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick; Tenafly with James McEachin and Farraday and Company with Dan Dailey.

Cute Joyce Bulifant is very grateful to everyone connected with the summer series she will have on ABC, Love Thy Neighbor. Just as the show went into rehearsal she was involved in a benefit luncheon for International Orphans, Inc., a charity she works with, and she had to have rehearsal schedule worked around her charity schedule. But then Joyce is talented enough to juggle schedules for any time.

Several people who are employed by Bob Hope are trying to get things organized for the Bob Hope Museum which is planned for a building Hope is going to build across the street from NBC. They're trying to locate photos of presentations to accompany display of the many gifts presented to him during his 22 Christmas trips overseas. It's a long job because Bob has, literally, a warehouse full of plaques, cups, scrolls, jackets, hats and hundreds of other miscellaneous items — some of them pretty funny — given to him by troops over the years.

Victor Borge says he learned to speak English by watching western movies. "I was the only Dane in the world," he says, "who sounded like Gabby Hayes."

There is still a possibility that that greatest of spies, Flint, may make it to TV. Saul David, who produced the Flint movies, says one network is working on it. David, unfortunately, doesn't own the property — 20th Century-Fox does — even though he created Flint and produced the films.

Barbara Feldon may make it back to Broadway — producer Richard Barr is after her for the lead in a new musical called "Sunny" he's putting together. She may do it — if a series she's interested in doesn't materialize although Barbara prefers California living.

Speaking of Broadway, Debbie Reynolds is a big hit in "Irene." Now she's mulling over the problem of whether or not she'll do the lead in London when the show is produced there.

Red Buttons has a busy schedule. He'll be playing clubs most of the summer and then, in the fall, go into the Irwin Allen sequel to "The Poseidon Adventure."

First, though, he's going to Europe.

"I've got some business there," Red says. "I'm thinking of buying a country."

EMMY AFTERMATH: Mary Tyler Moore's witty and brief acceptance speech after she won her popular and well-deserved Emmy may need explaining. Mary said, "Category A, Category A, Category A."

Prior to the awards telecast, producer Bob Finkel made a speech exhorting winners to be brief. He said, "I have written three examples of acceptance speeches and perhaps you'd like to jot them down. They are Category A — Thank you, Category B which is the same and Category C, also the same." Mary listened!

Nominee McLean Stevenson arrived with his manager Gene Lesser and Gene's actress wife Jacqueline Scott. The photographers snapped pictures of the trio until the crowd separated them. "The minute we lost McLean, we lost the photographers," Jacque said. "It was a blow to my ego."

Shari Lewis, prior to the telecast, said she was hoping to win an award in the children's category. "I have won four times and I have lost eight times. It's more fun to win." She did.

David Carradine dressed formally. He wore full length fatigues instead of cutoff-above-the-knee fatigues.

Among the ladies, Mitzi Gaynor looked spectacular and so did presenter Cicely Tyson, with a most glamorous image. Mary Tyler Moore's dress was sexy-demure, a summery print with one bare shoulder ("I think I'm pushing the season a bit," she said. "It's chilly out there.") and Lynda Day George was in a fringed suede pants and top outfit with American Indian jewelry.

How's this for a softball team?

The battery: Bob Donner, pitcher; Max Baer Jr., catcher.

The infield: Sugar Ray Robinson, 1b; Rob Reiner, 2b; Lee Majors, ss; Mike Connors, 3b.

The outfield: Clint Eastwood, lf; Lee Marvin, cf; David Jansen or Chad Everett, rf.

The team will materialize in Hawaii shortly to play a charity game.

Bob Donner, the pitcher, told me about the team at the party Palomar gave to honor Eddie Albert, Jeannie Berlin, Michael Caine and Joseph L. Mankiewicz.

At the Los Angeles premiere of "Butley," with Alan Bates, I sat next to Vince Edwards. He still hasn't heard whether his pilot, Fire House, has sold. He says his fingers are permanently crossed.

Diahann Carroll was there, with her new husband, Fred Glusman. It was their first appearance together in Hollywood since their marriage. They make a good-looking couple.

After the performance, Felicia and Jack Lemmon hosted a party for Bates and the cast. Among those present: Lee Marvin, Gregory Peck, David Jansen, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Ann Miller, Eleanor Parker and Carol Lynley.

When James Collier was directing the NBC-TV April 25 special, The Going Up of David Lev, on location in Israel, he found all kinds of problems not usually encountered on location.

For instance, one scene had young Brandon Cruz (as David Lev), befriended by a young Arab boy. Collier found a non-acting Arab who was perfect for the role. So he got permission from the boy's parents, and school authorities, taught him his lines phonetically (the lad spoke some English, but not much), and scheduled the filming of the scenes. The boy, whose name was Fawzi (which ironically is the character name in the script), then discovered he would not be able to do the scene. It called for him to eat oranges and filming was set during the month of Ramadan, when the faithful fast during the day.

So Fawzi had to withdraw and an Israeli lad was given the role of the Arab. With him, there was just another minor problem — he couldn't work on Saturdays, so the shooting schedule had to be rearranged carefully.

Brandon had his own problems in Israel, being a healthy American boy who likes hamburgers. He never adapted to the more exotic foods in the country. But Brandon persisted and in Tel Aviv he found a place called "The American Hamburger Stand. Every day he was driven there for lunch. He also found a place that sold bubblegum.

Mike Connors — Mannix — hosted the opening show of Enzo Stuarti, an old friend, at the Westside Room of the Century-Plaza Hotel. The combination of Connors' persuasiveness and Stuarti's big voice brought out a large collection of Hollywood celebrities. Among those

Country Singer's Success Is Result of Husband's Idea

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Loretta Lynn, named entertainer of the year by the Country Music Association last October, the only woman ever to win or be nominated, nominated for two Grammy Awards this year, sits curled up, brushing the long black hair she recently has washed and singing the praises of the husband who got her into the music business.

This young married couple had gone to a Saturday night dance in Custer, Wash., when all at once Mooney Lynn told the band that his wife could sing better than any woman country singer except Kitty Wells and they should let her sing with them. "I stood by the door. I thought, 'If they say yes I'm going to run. I never sang with music before."

"And Mooney had never heard me sing except rocking the baby. I didn't know he thought anything about it, but he took a notion. They said they didn't let nobody get up and sing but come back Wednesday night. I thought he'd forget all about it. But on Wednesday night he said, 'Are you ready to go? There's a lot of girls out singing and they can't sing any better than you or as good and why shouldn't you be making the money?'"

"We got married when I lacked three months of being 14. I knew then he was exceptional. He can do anything he wants to do. He didn't go very far in high school but he has horse sense and he knows whether something is right or wrong and he's a real hard worker. He oversees my career and our farm and offices, publishing companies and talent agency, and one of the biggest rodeos on the road. I don't know how he does as much as he does. He has a lot of people working for him but he'll plow all day and all night if he thinks it's necessary. He knows it is going to be done right if he is out there working or helping do it."

Miss Lynn was born in Butcher Hollow, Ky., the second child of eight. "I had rocked babies and took care of kids. How many girls of 13 today could put a meal on the table and not run to a store? I knew exactly how to raise a garden."

"My garden is out every year. If I'm home a day I'm canning. Mooney thinks I ought to be relaxing but I love to can. My first year of canning — I was about 17 because before that we didn't have a place big enough to put a garden — I swept the whole thing at the Washington State Fair. I got 17 first prizes, 13 second and 7 third. My girlfriend Edna Brown took her canned stuff every year and she talked me into taking mine. When I found out I won I leaped up in the air; I looked like a clam. They took my picture, blowed it up and had it standing by the gate. I was up in the air, hair going every way, 'Canner of the Year.' I went to the fair every night to see my picture by the gate."

After Mooney and Loretta Lynn got married in 1949 they moved from Kentucky to Washington and Mooney went from being a coalminer to working in timber and being a heavy duty mechanic. "The way we figured it, we'd sink or swim. The best thing for a young couple to do is get out on their own. We couldn't run home to Mama and Daddy. We married to stay that way.

"A week before I was 18, I had four children. Eight years later I had twins — Patsy, named for Patsy Cline, and Peggy, named for my sister. With the first four, I didn't really realize what a great thing it was to have a baby. We were just thinking, 'We got to feed these kids.' With the twins I realized how much pleasure they are — if a person can wait until they're old enough to make ends meet." The Lynns also have four grandchildren.

After Loretta Lynn started singing, people thought she wasn't married because she didn't have a wedding ring. So when she was 23 Mooney bought her a gold ring with four indents on top and told her if they ever could afford it they could set four chip diamonds in there. "I went once and asked and the jewelry store man said it would be cheaper to buy a new ring so I took my ring and left. I've got lots of rings now but it means more to me than any of the others."

"You know, if a lot of women would listen to their husbands more, they'd stay out of trouble. I've kind of left everything up to him."

Miss Lynn recorded first for Zero Records, "I'm a Honky Tonk Girl," which she wrote. Since, she has recorded for Decca. "I do about 95 per cent of my writing and have ever since I've been singing. Most of the country singers don't write. I feel if you don't write, you may have a hit record about every five years. As long as you write them you know you're going to have them. There's too many singers and not enough writers. But I never wrote a song till I started singing."

Her gold albums are "Don't Come home A-Drinkin' (with Lovin' on your Mind)" and "Greatest Hits." Nearly gold, she says, are "You Ain't Woman Enough (To Take my Man)," "Coal Miner's Daughter" and a hymn album.

She very much likes "Coal Miner's Daughter." "It was about three or four records back and a monster record for me. Many times I did try to write about the old home place but they never turned out like I wanted. This was exactly like I wanted."

"I usually write in my bus." This takes her 150,000 miles a year for personal appearances. "There are three lounges on there and 12 or 13 of us traveling together. I lock the door to my room and try to concentrate. I'll take a true thing or a happening around me that I can see. Maybe I'll spice it up a little or sometimes have to take some of the spice out of it. I'll write about somebody I am or would like to be.

"One thing I was thinking at the CMA awards was it would be great if Daddy could see me now. Me and him were so close together. One thing I hate most is that my Daddy never knew anything nice. He died in 1959 and I didn't start singing until 1961.

"It makes a difference stepping out of the life we did. I don't waste my money on nothing. We had a real hard life and it makes me appreciate what we have today. But you work like I worked and you don't ever want to see them days again, either."
